Intersectionality and Higher Education W. Carson Byrd,Rachelle J. Brunn-Bevel,Sarah M. Ovink,2019-05-03 Though colleges and universities are arguably paying more attention to diversity and inclusion than ever before to what extent do their efforts result in more socially just campuses Intersectionality and Higher Education examines how race ethnicity class gender sexuality sexual orientation age disability nationality and other identities connect to produce intersected campus experiences Contributors look at both the individual and institutional perspectives on issues like campus climate race class and gender disparities LGBTQ student experiences undergraduate versus graduate students faculty and staff from varying socioeconomic backgrounds students with disabilities undocumented students and the intersections of two or more of these topics Taken together this volume presents an evidence backed vision of how the twenty first century higher education landscape should evolve in order to meaningfully support all participants reduce marginalization and reach for equity and equality Making Education Work for the Poor William Elliott,Melinda Lewis,2018-07-03 Making Education Work for the Poor identifies wealth inequality as the gravest threat to the endangered American Dream Though studies have clearly illustrated that education is the primary path to upward mobility today educational outcomes are more directly determined by wealth than innate ability and exerted effort This accounting directly contradicts Americans understanding of the promise the American Dream is supposed to offer a level playing field and a path towards a more profitable future In this book the authors share their own stories of their journeys through the unequal U S education system One started from relative privilege and had her way to prosperity paved and her individual efforts augmented by institutional and structural support The other grew up in poverty and had to fight against currents to complete higher education only to find his ability to profit from that degree compromised by student debt To directly counter wealth inequality and make education the great equalizer that Americans believe it to be this book calls for a revolution in financial aid policy from debt dependence to asset empowerment The book examines the evidence base supporting Children s Savings Accounts including CSAs demonstrated potential to improve children s outcomes all along the opportunity pipeline early education school achievement college access and completion and post college financial health It then outlines a policy that builds on CSAs to incorporate a sizable progressive wealth transfer This new policy Opportunity Investment Accounts is framed as the cornerstone of the wealth building agenda the nation needs in order to salvage the American Dream Written by leading CSA researchers the book includes overviews of the major children s savings legislation proposed in Congress and the key features of prominent CSA programs in operation around the country today as well as new qualitative and quantitative CSA research The book ultimately presents a critical development of the theories that together explain how universal progressive asset based education financing could make education work equitably for all American children

Summer Melt Benjamin L. Castleman, Lindsay C. Page, 2020-01-15 Under increasing pressure to raise graduation rates and ensure that students leave high school college and career ready many school and district leaders may believe that when students graduate with college acceptances in hand their work is done But as Benjamin L Castleman and Lindsay C Page show summer can be a time of significant attrition among college intending seniors especially those from low income families Anywhere from 10 to 40 percent of students presumed to be headed to college fail to matriculate at any postsecondary institution in the fall following high school Summer Melt explores the complex factors that contribute to this trend the absence of school support confusion over paperwork lack of parental guidance and the teenage tendency to procrastinate The authors draw on findings from fields such as neuroscience behavioral economics and social psychology to contextualize these factors Drawing on a series of research studies they show how schools and districts can develop effective low cost scalable responses including counselor outreach peer mentoring and using text messages and social media to help students stay on track over the summer Summer Melt offers very practical guidance for schools and districts committed to helping their students make the transition to college

Holzer, Sandy Baum, 2017-08-15 Practical solutions for improving higher education opportunities for disadvantaged students Too many disadvantaged college students in America do not complete their coursework or receive any college credential while others earn degrees or certificates with little labor market value Large numbers of these students also struggle to pay for college and some incur debts that they have difficulty repaying The authors provide a new review of the causes of these problems and offer promising policy solutions The circumstances affecting disadvantaged students stem both from issues on the individual side such as weak academic preparation and financial pressures and from institutional failures Low income students disproportionately attend schools that are underfunded and have weak performance incentives contributing to unsatisfactory outcomes for many students Some solutions including better financial aid or academic supports target individual students Other solutions such as stronger linkages between coursework and the labor market and more structured paths through the curriculum are aimed at institutional reforms All students and particularly those from disadvantaged backgrounds also need better and varied pathways both to college and directly to the job market beginning in high school We can improve college outcomes but must also acknowledge that we must make hard choices and face difficult tradeoffs in the process While no single policy is guaranteed to greatly improve college and career outcomes implementing a number of evidence based policies and programs together has the potential to improve these outcomes substantially World Development Report 2015 World Bank, 2014-12-04 Development economics and policy are due for a redesign In the past few decades research from across the natural and social sciences has provided stunning insight into the way people think and make decisions Whereas the first generation of development policy was based on the assumption that humans make decisions deliberatively and independently and on the basis of consistent and self interested preferences recent research shows that decision making rarely proceeds this way People think automatically when deciding they usually draw on what comes to mind effortlessly People also think socially social norms guide much of behavior and many people prefer to cooperate as long as others are doing their share And people think with mental models what they perceive and how they interpret it depend on concepts and worldviews drawn from their societies and from shared histories The World Development Report 2015 offers a concrete look at how these insights apply to development policy It shows how a richer view of human behavior can help achieve development goals in many areas including early childhood development household finance productivity health and climate change It also shows how a more subtle view of human behavior provides new tools for interventions Making even minor adjustments to a decision making context designing interventions based on an understanding of social preferences and exposing individuals to new experiences and ways of thinking may enable people to improve their lives The Report opens exciting new avenues for development work It shows that poverty is not simply a state of material deprivation but also a tax on cognitive resources that affects the quality of decision making It emphasizes that all humans including experts and policy makers are subject to psychological and social influences on thinking and that development organizations could benefit from procedures to improve their own deliberations and decision making It demonstrates the need for more discovery learning and adaptation in policy design and implementation The new approach to development economics has immense promise Its scope of application is vast This Report introduces an important new agenda for the development community Counselor's Handbook for Postsecondary Schools ,1998 U.C.
