Can the President
 "Control" the Media?
 President John F. Kennedy's relationship with the media was a complex one. He was a master of the press conference, and he was often the subject of intense media scrutiny.
 However, he was also a man who was deeply concerned about the role of the media in society. He believed that the media had a duty to report the truth, and he was often at odds with the media when it came to issues of national security and foreign policy. His relationship with the media was a reflection of his belief in the importance of transparency and accountability in government.
