

Identifying the Mutation

Identify the following:

- Substitution mutation: the replacement of one amino acid by another without changing the sequence of the amino acid side chain. This is caused by a change in one or more nucleotides in the DNA sequence, but the amino acid sequence of the protein remains the same or is conserved.
- Insertion mutation: the addition of one or more amino acids to the protein sequence.
- Deletion mutation: the removal of one or more amino acids from the protein sequence.
- Frameshift mutation: a mutation that shifts the reading frame of the protein sequence, causing all amino acids downstream to be changed.
- Point mutation: a mutation that changes a single nucleotide in the DNA sequence, which can result in a substitution, insertion, or deletion.
- Indel mutation: a mutation that involves the insertion or deletion of one or more nucleotides in the DNA sequence, which can result in a frameshift mutation.
- Conservative mutation: a substitution mutation in which the amino acid being replaced has similar properties to the amino acid it is being replaced by.
- Non-conservative mutation: a substitution mutation in which the amino acid being replaced has different properties to the amino acid it is being replaced by.
- Stop codon mutation: a mutation that changes a single nucleotide in the DNA sequence, which results in a premature stop codon and a truncated protein.
- Start codon mutation: a mutation that changes a single nucleotide in the DNA sequence, which results in a premature start codon and a truncated protein.
- Missense mutation: a substitution mutation in which the amino acid being replaced has different properties to the amino acid it is being replaced by, and the change is not a stop codon.
- Nonsense mutation: a substitution mutation in which the amino acid being replaced has different properties to the amino acid it is being replaced by, and the change is a stop codon.
- Frameshift mutation: a mutation that shifts the reading frame of the protein sequence, causing all amino acids downstream to be changed.
- Insertion mutation: the addition of one or more amino acids to the protein sequence.
- Deletion mutation: the removal of one or more amino acids from the protein sequence.
- Frameshift mutation: a mutation that shifts the reading frame of the protein sequence, causing all amino acids downstream to be changed.

Identify the type of mutation for each of the following. (Remember that a mutation that changes a single nucleotide in the DNA sequence is a point mutation, and a mutation that involves the insertion or deletion of one or more nucleotides in the DNA sequence is an indel mutation.)
