June 2011 A Level Economics Zimsec Examination Question Paper:

Export Product Quality, Renewable Energy, and Sustainable Production Umer Shahzad, Gagan Deep Sharma, Lianbiao Cui, John Mendy, 2023-09-12 Economic development has long been acknowledged for its beneficial effects on human well being. In the context of economic globalization and vertical specialization, increasing the quality of export products is more critical and necessary to export success and sustainable development. The product's quality is inextricably linked to its manufacture and production, which need various types of energy and raw materials. Meanwhile, the adoption of more environmentally friendly and cleaner energy sources contributes to the achievement of sustainable production. Therefore, product quality may provide a new perspective from which to investigate the systematic relationship between greener and renewable energy sources, sustainable production, and environmental regulations, as well as the nature of export competitiveness. Generally, export product quality has referred to the quality of manufactured products within the product lines. Quality refers to the relative price of a country's varieties within their respective product lines. Product sophistication assesses the composition of the aggregate exports. Different varieties of same product at per quality level are being produced by several developing and emerging economies. Within any given product line, quality converges both conditionally and unconditionally to the world's benchmark. Increases in institutional quality and human capital are associated with faster quality upgrading. In turn, faster growth in quality is associated with more rapid output growth. Evaluating the adoption and impacts of agricultural technologies Francisco Areal, Valerien Pede, 2023-12-18

Citizen Activities in Energy Transition Sampsa Hyysalo, 2021-06-09 This book addresses the rapidly changing citizen roles in innovation, technology adoption, intermediation, market creation, and legitimacy building for low carbon solutions. It links research in innovation studies, sustainability transitions, and science and technology studies and builds a new approach for the study of user contributions to innovation and sociotechnical change. Citizen Activities in Energy Transition gives detailed and empirically grounded overall appraisal of citizens' active technological engagement in the current energy transition in an era when Internet connectivity has given rise to important new forms of citizen communities and interactions. It elaborates a new way to study users in sociotechnical change through long-term ethnographic and historical research and reports its deployment in a major decade-long line of investigation on user activities in small-scale renewables, addressing user contributions from the early years to the late proliferation stages of small-scale renewable energy technologies. S-RETs It offers a much-needed empirical and theoretical understanding of the dynamics of the activities in which users are engaged over the course of sociotechnical change, including innovation, adoption, adjustment, intermediation, community building, digital communities, market creation, and legitimacy creation. This work is a must-read for those seeking to understand the role of users in innovation, energy systems change, and the significance of new digital communities in present and future sociotechnical change. Academics, policymakers, and managers are given a new resource to understand the demand side of sociotechnical change beyond the patterns of investment adoption and social acceptance that have traditionally occupied their attention
