

Evolution: Mutation and Selection

Answer Key

Vocabulary: adaptation, allele, chromosome, evolution, fitness, gene, genotype, mutation, natural selection, phenotype, trait

Prior Knowledge Questions (Do these BEFORE using the Gizmo.)

[Note: The purpose of these questions is to activate prior knowledge and get students thinking. Students are not expected to know the answers to the Prior Knowledge Questions.]

1. Imagine a white lizard and a brown lizard sitting on a brown rock. A hawk is circling overhead hunting for its next meal. Which lizard do you think the hawk would most likely try to catch? Explain your choice.

Answers will vary. [The hawk will most likely try to catch the white lizard because it is not as well camouflaged as the brown lizard.]

2. Now imagine that the same two lizards were sitting on a dune of white sand. Which lizard do you think the hawk would then most likely try to catch? Why?

Answers will vary. [The hawk will most likely try to catch the brown lizard in this case because it is not as well camouflaged as the white lizard.]

How long could a parrot survive in Antarctica? It would probably not survive long. Parrots do not have adaptations—or helpful characteristics—to survive icy cold weather. Because of this, a parrot is not fit for Antarctica. Fitness describes how well an organism can survive and reproduce in an environment.

In the Evolution: Mutation and Selection Gizmo™, you will see how a species' fitness can change over time as it becomes better adapted to its environment.

1. On the SIMULATION pane, what is the Average fitness of the population? 50%
2. On the CONTROLS pane, experiment with the Background color sliders.
 - A. Which background color results in the highest fitness? $R = 255$, $G = 255$, $B = 255$
 - B. Which background color results in the lowest fitness? $R = 0$, $G = 0$, $B = 0$

Disentangling Mutation and Selection in Human Genetic Variation Ipsita Agarwal,2021 Through the two specific cases described this work illustrates the potential of large contemporary repositories of human genetic variation to inform human genetics and evolution as well as their limitations in the absence of suitable models of mutation selection and other aspects of the evolutionary process

Evolving Ourselves Juan Enriquez, Steve Gullans,2015 Though these harbingers of change are deeply unsettling the authors argue that we are also in an epoch of tremendous opportunity New advances in biotechnology help us mitigate the cruel forces of natural selection from saving prematurely born babies to gene therapies for sickle cell anemia and other conditions As technology enables us to take control of our genes we will be able to alter our own species and many others a good thing given that our eventual survival will require space travel and colonization enabled by a fundamental redesign of our bodies Future humans could become great caretakers of the planet as well as a more diverse more resilient gentler and more intelligent species but only if we make the right choices now

Delineating the Evolutionary Dynamics of Mutation and Selection Vijetha Vemulapalli,2012 Transposable elements TEs have important effects on genome function ranging from functional exaptation and altered regulatory mechanism to large scale rearrangements of the genome How TEs evolve and what factors affect their ability to replicate is however not completely understood Furthermore large numbers of TEs are distributed throughout primate genomes and because of this TEs can be used to estimate the neutral substitution process and possible context dependent variation in this process The neutral substitution process is a reflection of the underlying mutation process identification of context effects leads to better understanding of factors affecting underlying mutational processes and leads to improved ability to detect selection

Abstract Study of Mathematical Models of Mutation and Selection in Multi-locus Systems. Annual Progress Report, December 1, 1977--November 30, 1978 ,1978 A computer and analytic study of the interaction between genetic drift and directional selection in multi locus systems has shown that when selectively favorable alleles are in low to moderate initial frequencies the process of selection in finite populations will cause a greater genetic divergence between identically selected populations than would occur with genetic drift alone The relation between population size selection parameters and initial genetic constitution of the populations for which this phenomenon occurs has been established A numerical and analytic study was made of effective density in populations that are non uniformly distributed over area A measure of effective density $D_{sub p}$ the person weighted density has been related to the conventional density measure which is area weighted by the variances of area and population and their covariance The effective densities in the United States were computed from the county by county census figures of 1960 and it was shown that the effective density of occupation is 50 times higher than the conventional density measure shows

Keeping the Red Queen in Check Daniel Joseph Balick,2012 In this dissertation we describe the microscopic behavior and emergent phenomena of evolutionary dynamics We introduce frameworks that explicitly incorporate the effects of beneficial and deleterious mutations and distributions of mutations We treat a full distribution of mutations in adapting populations providing a unified description of interference between established mutations We compute experimentally observable parameters including the speed of adaptation and the distribution of fixed mutations for a general underlying distribution of available beneficial mutations We identify an equivalence between the adaptive dynamics using a distribution of mutations and the well known dynamics of mutations with a single fitness effect Treating beneficial and deleterious mutations simultaneously a dynamic mutation selection balance emerges which we argue is an evolutionarily stable state The dynamic balance state describes a population in which rare beneficial mutations are sufficient to halt the stochastically driven extinction of subclasses in the population This introduces a stationary state which we argue lies in an attractive basin such that any generic adaptive population or fitness degrading population will approach the same equilibrium The existence of this evolutionary attractor and its stability introduce this description as a new null expectation for any evolving population We suggest that more complicated biological effects such as changes in mutation rate may be viewed as effective perturbations away from this state The Statistics of Natural Selection on Animal Populations Bryan F. J.

Manly,1985-09-19 In the concluding chapter of his famous book on the theory of evolution by natural selection Charles Darwin 1859 remarked that When the views entertained in this volume on the origin of species or when analogous views are generally admitted we can dimly foresee that there will be a considerable revolution in natural history This proved of course to be completely correct At present there is a great divergence of opinion about the general importance of natural selection in the evolutionary process Nevertheless biologists are on the whole united in their acceptance of the potential power of selection in changing populations Given this situation it is not surprising to find that many attempts to detect the effects of natural selection have been made since the time of Darwin This area of study has been called ecological genetics It involves the collection of data of various kinds and in many cases the development of special methods for analysing these data This book is a summary of methods for data analysis concentrating on those that are applicable to animal populations particularly wild populations Theoretical Studies on Genetic Limits to Natural and Artificial Selection with Mutation
