Before comparing within-subjects and between-groups F tests, we first collapsed groups together on the basis that, prior to using them for statistical analysis, we decided to use the same number of groups as we had conditions, with groups being defined on the basis of the number of groups used in each condition. This meant that we had 12 groups in each condition, with 12 conditions in each condition. We then used a 2 (within-subjects) $\times$ 2 (between-subjects) F test to compare the two conditions. The results of the F test are shown in Table 1.
