- 1) Thompson (1984) defines five categories for the process of spreading diffusion from the origin. Source is the starting location; transmission is what the person who starts the movement is doing; medium is the vehicle; target is the intended audience; field is the social context. The original source and production/medium is the only way to spread your culture (process of cultural change) is correct.
- 2) Thompson (1984) describes five categories as source (the origin or locus of the pattern), medium (the vehicle), transmission (the act or process), target (the intended audience), and field (the social context).
- 3) Media (the social context) is the system of your needs, open to the other features in the system (prevalence over the other group of the system).
- 4) Process (the act) is to spread culture from one to another (e.g. to travel) (communication to go to).
- 5) Target (the intended audience) and medium (the vehicle) are processes of spreading from the origin (source) to the target (intended audience).
- 6) Source (the origin) is the starting point of the diffusion process.

This system is designed to capture the essential (200–2000 Hz) lower range of the voice spectrum, to capture the early part of any other possible speech. This modification distinguishes the male voice from women in some applications. The radio should be constructed as an AM system (see Figure 10). The last circuit is an audio amplifier, constructed by a radio hobbyist, which can produce the radio in the frequency range of 100 kHz without adding greatly into the frequency band of the original system. To facilitate the life of the circuit, it is better using the radio constructed by a hobbyist (e.g., Radio Shack, etc.).

Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was a randomized, controlled trial. The subjects were 40 sedentary, middle-aged women who were randomly assigned to either a supervised walking program or a control group. The walking program consisted of 12 weeks of supervised walking, 3 times per week, for 30 minutes per session. The control group consisted of 20 women who did not participate in the walking program. The subjects were assessed at baseline and at 12 weeks for physical and psychological health. The physical health measures included weight, body mass index (BMI), waist circumference, and blood pressure. The psychological health measures included the Beck Depression Inventory (BDI) and the State-Trait Anxiety Inventory (STAI). The results of the study showed that the walking program had a significant positive effect on the physical and psychological health of the subjects. The walking program resulted in a significant decrease in weight, BMI, waist circumference, and blood pressure. The walking program also resulted in a significant decrease in BDI and STAI scores. The control group did not show any significant changes in these measures. The results of this study suggest that a 12-week, low-intensity, supervised walking program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
