- a) 2 human activities that have caused a decrease in the amount of freshwater flow to the Everglades are agricultural and urban developments that needed to divert the water towards those areas and away from that ecosystem. Agricultural developments require irrigation to grow the abundance of crops, and urban expansion needs that water for the people living there, the sewage system, and everything else we use water for in a city. However, the extremely large production of a nonessential domestically produced product known as sugarcane is an immense contributor to the degradation of the Everglades. The urban development is there to support that growing industry.
- b) I. One human activity is the fertilization of sugarcane in the agricultural areas adjacent to the Everglades, and phosphorus is one of the primary nutrients used in fertilizer. The runoff will eventually travel to the Everglades, including the phosphorus-rich fertilizer, and pollute it.
II. One way this increase can affect the Everglades is because some of this nutrient-rich fertilizer is being carried into the water, some of the nutrient-loving plants begin to replace the native species and eventually lead to a eutrophication problem in the water, or an extreme overgrowth in the benefiting plants that kills or greatly harms everything else in the water.
III. One way farmers can decrease the likelihood of phosphorus runoff and therefore pollution of the Everglades is to use buffer strips, which are small areas of land in permanent vegetation which control the water runoff and slow down erosion. They could also be more limiting in the planting of soil-stripping crops that will need to be heavily fertilized if not solved by another possible solution: planting a cover crop to naturally fertilize the land.
- c) A reduction in water quantity leads to a soil reduction as well; worse water quality pollutes the Everglades and destroys the diversity in the unique ecosystem because it has a naturally low nutrients when you introduce high levels of phosphorus; lastly, loss of habitat results in a huge loss in species and genetic diversity. Native species are choked out by thriving ones that adapted to the three effects listed above.
- d) I. Restoring water quantity and quality will result in a healthier ecosystem that can support a greater variety of species, both plant and animal.
II. Fixing the water will improve fish populations around Florida and help the commercial and sporting fishing business.

Assessment in Science D.P. Shepardson, 2011-06-27 Assessment in Science combines professional development and classroom practice in a single volume. The pragmatic nature of the book makes it a valuable resource for administrators and staff developers interested in designing professional development programs and for science teachers looking for techniques and examples of classroom based assessments. Unique features of Assessment in Science include 1 practical strategies and tools for implementing successful professional development programs in science assessment 2 teacher stories and case studies about classroom based assessment practice and how these teachers changed their assessment practice 3 examples of classroom based assessments and scoring guides 4 samples of student work with teacher commentary and 5 examples of how the national reform documents in science education served as tools in professional development programs and in designing classroom based assessments. Assessment in Science expands the existing literature on science assessment by sharing a model for professional development and examples of teacher developed assessments with accompanying student work and teacher commentary. Chapters written by science teachers tell how they assess students and how they have changed their assessment practice as well as how changing assessment practice has resulted in a change in their science instruction. Assessment in Science is targeted at practising professionals in science education administrators staff developers science teachers and university science educators. Assessment in Science has applicability to graduate level courses in science education and in service courses for science teachers. The teacher chapters are also appropriate for use in undergraduate science methods courses to illustrate classroom based assessments.

Applied Data Analysis and Modeling for Energy Engineers and Scientists T. Agami Reddy, 2011-08-09 Applied Data Analysis and Modeling for Energy Engineers and Scientists fills an identified gap in engineering and science education and practice for both students and practitioners. It demonstrates how to apply concepts and methods learned in disparate courses such as mathematical modeling probability statistics experimental design regression model building optimization risk analysis and decision making to actual engineering processes and systems. The text provides a formal structure that offers a basic broad and unified perspective while imparting the knowledge skills and confidence to work in data analysis and modeling. This volume uses numerous solved examples published case studies from the author's own research and well conceived problems in order to enhance comprehension levels among readers and their understanding of the processes along with the tools.
