

1. What is the function of each of these structures?

flying and gliding

2. How are they different in form? Give specific differences.

2 pieces of the wing in butterfly whereas many feathers in a bird's wing. There are bones in a bird's wing and none in the butterfly.

Compare the overall body structure of the cave fish and the minnow below.

1. What is the biggest, most obvious difference between the body structure of these two fish?
Cave fish lack eyes and scales
2. Assume the two fish came from the same original ancestor. Why might the cave fish have evolved without eyesight?

It's in a dark environment all of the time and so no need for sight. This adaptation would not have given it an advantage and therefore was not selected for.

3. What kind of sensory adaptation would you hypothesize the cave fish has to allow it to navigate in a cave, including catching and eating food?

Sensitivity to motion/vibration/electrical impulses/sound/smell/taste

You have now studied three different types of anatomical structures:

☐ Homologous structures show individual variations on a common anatomical theme. These are seen in organisms that are closely related.

1. Give an example of a homologous structure from this activity:
Crocodile leg, human arm
Human and cat front legs

☐ Analogous structures have very different anatomies but similar functions. These are seen in organisms that are not necessarily closely related, but live in similar environments and have similar adaptations.
