Technology Assessment of Automation Trends in the Modular Home Industry Philip H. Mitchell,2009 This report provides an assessment of technology used in manufacturing modular homes in the United States and that used in the German prefabricated wooden home industry It is the first step toward identifying the research needs in automation and manufacturing methods that will facilitate mass customization in the home manufacturing industry Within the United States a relatively low level of technology was found in domestic modular home manufacturers Raw material transportation was mostly manual manually operated saws sized raw materials cranes were used to move subassemblies and modules were pushed by hand or with a battery powered pusher German prefabricated home manufacturers used closed panels to construct walls roofs and floors rather than modular construction Three levels of automation were identified manual semi automated and fully automated Manual production methods were similar to those found in the United States In semi automated factories automated machinery was used but an operator was required to manually load unload and start the machine The fully automated factories had equipment capable of machining and transferring panel components and placing and fastening components together Such investment in automation is risky in the cyclic housing industry The modular factory has elevated homebuilding from a craft to mass production but flexibility is reduced and significant customization is difficult Future research should examine the cost effectiveness of using high levels of automation software and equipment in the U S homebuilding industry and whether it can profitably provide the manufacturing flexibility for mass customization Alternatively the use of lean manufacturing in modular home factories to realize the same benefits needs to be examined

American Perspectives on Learning Communities and Opportunities in the Maker Movement Barker, Bradley S.,2019-01-11 The maker movement culture emphasizes informal peer led and shared learning while driving innovation Even though some experts view the maker movement as a move backward to pre industrial revolution manufacturing the purpose of making is not to have an abundance of tools in one space rather it is about helping participants create personally meaningful projects with the help of mentors experts and peers in ad hoc learning communities American Perspectives on Learning Communities and Opportunities in the Maker Movement is an essential reference source that discusses the maker movement in the United States artisanal perspectives and the learning through doing perspective Featuring research on topics such as educational spaces management creativity labs makerspaces and operating procedures this book is ideally designed for entrepreneurs artisans academicians researchers manufacturing professionals and students The National Agricultural Directory 2011 ,2010 Corporate design manual Georg-Simon-Ohm-Fachhochschule (Nürnberg),2001
