Critical Investigations Into Interns' Urban Teaching Apprenticeship Experiences John Lockhart, 2009 A critical task for public school teachers is to build and maintain productive relationships with their students especially to facilitate learning That task is particularly important in preparing new teachers for urban schools because cultural differences between the majority of urban teachers and their students can complicate and impair those relationships Multicultural education literature often describes and analyzes preservice teachers typically white middle class not urban and often female who are entering urban environments as being resistant to learning about race and class That research has usually been conducted on preservice teachers in their coursework often in the lone required diversity course and apart from practice work in the schools This study is guided by the theory that in situations people rely upon the habits of thought feeling attitude and action they've developed through interaction with others and that people experience a strong continuity in the use of those habits during life Though these habits may help one to negotiate situations they may also be a hindrance especially in situations significantly different from familiar ones I studied three interns from white middle class suburban and rural backgrounds who were placed in urban high schools with many nonwhite students from working class backgrounds to examine this central question How did the three interns use the habits they formed as honors students in mainly white monolingual middle class rural or suburban schools and communities with their characteristics to forge conceptions and practices for teaching students in urban high schools and communities with characteristics that differ appreciably I conducted this study in the interns placements using classroom observations follow up interviews and data from university coursework to analyze the meaning of the intern s experiences for them I highlight how interns habitual views of race and class were consistent with descriptions in the literature and impacted their practices However I also analyze an important dimension not often considered how interns habits of being good students hindered their abilities to connect with their students who generally did not have the same positive attitude toward schools as the interns I then present a case study of each intern to analyze their teaching practices which mostly involved lecture worksheets and recitation In doing so I demonstrate how resistance was operating but also show a variety of factors that complicated interns efforts to develop competence as teachers including their efforts to form relationships with their students I explore how the interns made sense of their situations in ways that negated issues of race and class Because the interns struggles to learn how to teach included but exceeded the scope of the resistance argument I argue for a reconceptualization of resistance that recognizes it as an expected reaction when a piece of an intern s valued identity is under assault by experiences for which habits are largely unequipped to deal I argue that such a conceptualization can help teacher educators to work with interns more effectively as learners in very unfamiliar and uncomfortable territory I discuss some possible directions for teaching and research for teacher educators who undertake the charge of preparing future teachers to work with students from different backgrounds The dissertation citations contained here are published with the permission of ProQuest llc Further reproduction is prohibited without permission Copies of dissertations may be obtained by Telephone 800 1 800 521 0600 Web page <http://www.proquest.com/en-US/products/dissertations/individuals.shtml>

Survival of the Fittest Michael Taylor,2012-07-09 The world is in turmoil Reeling after a devastating alien invasion that decimates the worlds population humanity survives in small communities fighting for their lives Countless millions died during the initial invasion and those still alive are seen as nothing more than a food source for the hungry Quar Governments quickly fall across the globe and a primitive brutal survival mentality now consumes the world But amid the chaos one small pocket of technology held out longer than the rest Within a secret lab Earths salvation rested on the small shoulders of a group of genetically modified children known only as the Theta DNA kids No longer fully human they carry the genetic traits of humanity withinand they now face the very destiny they had been engineered for They were humanitys last best hope for a futureany future Once out of the lab the Theta DNA kids begin a dangerous nomadic adventure Along the way they encounter other small groups of other Thetan DNA mutants and struggle to form alliances Can these young heroes put their own adolescent insecurities aside long enough to truly work together for the common good To do so they must learn to work together to leadand to fight for the very future of humanity Their enemies are close but even the teens dont fully understand how close Through the horrors of invasion grief loss and brutal truth these young soldiers fight for every thing with everything theyve been genetically enhanced to give

The Making and Breaking of Minds: How social interactions shape the human mind Isabella Sarto-Jackson,2022-04-05 The human brain has a truly remarkable capacity. It reorganizes itself flexibly adjusting to fluctuating environmental conditions a process called neuroplasticity. Neuroplasticity provides the basis for wide ranging learning and memory processes that are particularly profuse during childhood and adolescence. At the same time the exceptional malleability of the developing brain leaves it highly vulnerable to negative impact from the surroundings. Abusive or neglecting social environments as well as socioeconomic deprivation and poverty cause toxic stress and complex traumas that can severely compromise cognitive development, emotional processing, self perception and executive brain functions. The neurophysiological changes entailed impair emotional regulation, lead to heightened anxiety and afflict attachment and the formation of social bonds. Neuroplastic changes following severely adverse experiences are not something that a person grows out of and gets over. These experiences alter the neurobiological and biochemical makeup and cause people to live in an emotionally relabeled world in which the evaluation of any social cue, their behavior, cognition and state of mind are biased towards the negative. Even more worrying detrimental neurophysiological consequences are not limited to the traumatized individual but are often transmitted to subsequent generations through a process of social niche construction thereby creating a vicious cycle. Thus the making and breaking forces of the brain are epitomized by parents, alloparents, peers and our socioeconomic niche. This book expounds on the formative role that the social environment plays in healthy brain development especially during infancy, childhood and adolescence. Based on scientific findings the book advocates for bold measures and responsible stewardship to combat child abuse, maltreatment and child poverty. By bringing together insights from neuroscience, evolutionary biology and social education work it lays out a fact based transdisciplinary endeavor that aims at rising to the societal challenge of providing a rewarding perspective to youth at risk. It will be a valuable resource for academics from social education, pedagogy, cognitive science, neuroscience as well as professionals in the fields of social work, pedagogy, education, child welfare.

World War Zoos John M. Kinder,2025-04-22 A new and heartbreaking history of World War II as told through the shocking experiences of zoos across the globe As Europe lurched into war in 1939 zookeepers started killing their animals On September 1 as German forces invaded Poland Warsaw began with its reptiles Two days later workers at the London Zoo launched a similar spree dispatching six alligators seven iguanas sixteen southern anacondas six Indian fruit bats a fishing cat a binturong a Siberian tiger five magpies an Alexandrine parakeet two bullfrogs three lion cubs a cheetah four wolves and a manatee over the next few months Zoos worldwide did the same The reasons were many but the pattern was clear The war that was about to kill so many people started by killing so many animals Why And how did zoos nevertheless not just survive the war but play a key role in how people did too A harrowing yet surprisingly uplifting chronicle Kinder s World War Zoos traces how zoos survived the deadliest decades of global history from the Great Depression through the terrors of World War II to the dawn of the Cold War More than anything before or since World War II represented an existential threat to the world s zoological institutions Some zoos were bombed others bore the indignities of foreign occupation Even zoos that were spared had to wrestle with questions rarely asked in public What should they do when supplies ran low Which animals should be killed to protect the lives of others And how could zoos justify keeping dangerous animals that might escape and run wild during an aerial attack Zoos in wartime reveal the shared vulnerabilities of humans and animals during periods of social unrest and environmental peril World War II era zoos offered people ways to think about and grapple with imprisonment powerlessness and degradation Viewed today the story of zoos during World War II can be read as an allegory of twenty first century crises as the effects of climate change threaten all life across the planet A one of a kind history World War Zoos is the story of how the world s zoos survived the deadliest conflict of the twentieth century and what was lost along the way
