The psychology of individualism that underlies American life is no longer adequate to guide a future filled with diversity America's children may have wings to soar into the future but they lack roots connecting them to a shared heritage Something Greater explores the impact of individualism on American child rearing practices and its inability to deal with diversity while sustaining life together in families and communities By contrasting the intergenerational values of biblical and Chinese communities and current infant research with her own experiences in San Francisco's Chinatown the author reveals how the living stories of heritage that lie at the heart of human development speak to a deep American hunger for shared values and connectedness in family and community
