Task 1: Strategic Analysis
 The first task is to conduct a strategic analysis of the company. This involves identifying the external and internal environments of the company. The external environment includes factors such as the market, competitors, and the economy. The internal environment includes factors such as the company's resources, capabilities, and culture. A SWOT analysis is used to identify the company's strengths, weaknesses, opportunities, and threats. This analysis helps to identify the company's strategic options.

Task 2: Strategic Formulation
 The second task is to formulate a strategy. This involves developing a strategic vision and mission statement. The vision statement describes the company's long-term goals and aspirations. The mission statement describes the company's purpose and the scope of its operations. Strategic objectives are then developed to support the vision and mission. These objectives are specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, and time-bound. Strategies are then developed to achieve these objectives. Finally, a strategic action plan is developed to implement the strategies.

Task 3: Strategic Implementation
 The third task is to implement the strategy. This involves putting the strategic action plan into practice. This requires the company to allocate resources, assign responsibilities, and monitor progress. The company should also communicate the strategy to all employees and ensure that they understand their role in implementing the strategy.

Task 4: Strategic Evaluation
 The fourth task is to evaluate the strategy. This involves assessing the company's performance against its strategic objectives. This can be done using a variety of methods, such as financial ratios, customer satisfaction surveys, and employee surveys. The results of the evaluation should be used to identify areas for improvement and to adjust the strategy as needed.
