Improving Primary Mathematics Education, Teaching and Learning Mellony Graven, Hamsa Venkat, 2017-01-19 This book focuses on how to improve the teaching and learning of primary level mathematics education within resource constrained contexts It builds on two large numeracy projects within South Africa which speak to broader global concerns and highlight how research and development not only enables one to meet ethical imperatives but also explore how further interventions can be developed Teacher and research communities must work together to create mutually beneficial relationships and establish a cohesive understanding of the requirements of primary mathematics education

Basic Education beyond the Millennium Development Goals in Ghana David Balwanz, Peter Darvas, 2013-12-11 Expansion of basic education in Ghana was unprecedented and brought the country to the forefront in education in Africa The report provides analysis lessons and policy options to developing a post MDG strategic agenda for basic education

The Report: South Africa 2014 Oxford Business Group, 2014-12-08 Indeed since the end of apartheid in 1994 South Africa has become a major diplomatic player both on the African continent

as well as further afield Despite the size of South Africa's economy the country currently faces a number of major economic challenges As of the end of July 2014 the unemployment rate was at 25.5% according to data from Statistics South Africa which was among the highest in the world While the government's long term development plans are generally highly regarded delivery and execution has occasionally been problematic While there are major hurdles that must be cleared given the country's strong institutions and the rapid pace of economic expansion over the past two decades South Africa should be able to look forward to 20 more years of peace and steady sustained economic growth Atlanta Magazine, 2005-01

Engineers Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Science and Technology Committee, 2013-02-08 In the UK we teach young people to become computer users and consumers rather than programmers and software engineers This is creating a chronic skills gap in ICT We need around 82 000 engineers and technicians just to deal with retirements up to 2016 and 830 000 SET professionals by 2020 On the plus side the Government's proposal to include computer science as a fourth science option to count towards the EBac is welcomed The Committee also welcomes the EBac's focus on attainment of mathematics and science GCSEs but is concerned that subjects such as Design and Technology D T might be marginalised A Technical Baccalaureate TechBac is being designed but if it is to be a success schools should be incentivised to focus on the TechBac by making it equivalent to the EBac Reforms to vocational education following the Wolf Review meant that Level 2 of the Engineering Diploma a qualification highly regarded would count as equivalent to one GCSE despite requiring curriculum time and effort equivalent to several GCSEs The Engineering Diploma however is currently being redesigned as four separate qualifications The Committee also expressed concerns over the Department for Education's DfE lack of clarity on its research budget and use of evidence in decision making The DfE needs to place greater focus on gathering evidence before changes to qualifications are made and must leave sufficient time for evidence to be gathered on the effectiveness of policies before introducing further change The possibility of gathering evidence from randomised controlled trials RCTs should be seriously considered Frontiers in the Acquisition of Literacy Claire M. Fletcher-Flinn, 2015-09-28 Learning to read and to spell are two of the most important cultural skills that must be acquired by children and for that matter anyone learning a second language We are not born with an innate ability to read A reading system of mental representations that enables us to read must be formed in the brain Learning to read in alphabetic orthographies is the acquisition of such a system which links mental representations of visual symbols letters in print words with pre existing phonological sound and semantic comprehension cognitive systems for language Although spelling draws on the same representational knowledge base and is usually correlated with reading the acquisition processes involved are not quite the same Spelling requires the sequential production of letters in words and at beginning levels there may not be a full degree of integration of phonology with its representation by the orthography Reading on the other hand requires only the recognition of a word for pronunciation Hence spelling is more difficult than reading and learning to spell may necessitate more complete representations or more conscious access to them The learning processes that children use to acquire such cognitive systems in the brain and whether these same processes are universal across different languages and orthographies are central theoretical questions Most children learn to read and spell their language at the same time thus the co ordination of these two facets of literacy acquisition needs explication as well as the effect of different teaching approaches on acquisition Lack of progress in either reading and or spelling is also a major issue of concern for parents and teachers necessitating a cross disciplinary approach to the problem encompassing major efforts from researchers in neuroscience cognitive science experimental psychology and education The purpose of this Research Topic is to summarize and review what has been accomplished so far and to further explore these general issues Contributions from different perspectives are welcomed and could include theoretical computational and empirical works that focus on the acquisition of literacy including cross orthographic research

Experimental evidence on the learning impacts of a large-scale school feeding program in Ghana Aurino, Elisabetta, Gelli, Aulo, Adamba, Clement, Osei-Akoto, Isaac, Alderman, Harold, 2018-12-20 There is very limited experimental evidence of the impact of large scale government led school meals programs on child educational achievements in Sub Saharan Africa We address this gap by reporting treatment effects from a nationwide randomized trial of the Government of Ghana's school feeding program GSFP on children's math and literacy cognition problem solving ability and working memory and composite scores of overall attainments Based on the government's plans to re target and scale up the GSFP food insecure schools and related communities across the country were randomly assigned to school feeding After two years of implementation program availability led to moderate increases in test scores for the average pupil in school catchment areas ranging between 0.12 and 0.16 standard deviations Analysis focusing on per protocol population subgroups unveiled substantial heterogeneity school feeding led to remarkable learning and cognitive gains for girls poorest children and children from the northern regions Program effects were at least twice as large as for the average child Increases in enrolment grade attainment and shifts in time use toward schooling time constituted potential mechanisms for impact We conclude the program combined social protection with equitable human capital accumulation thus contributing to the imperative of learning for all set in the Sustainable Development Goals
