

Tips for naming molecules

There are three steps, though that I have found useful over the years. The first concerns organic molecules, the second, inorganic, the third, for polymers, simple ones.

Remember that the name of an organic molecule has three parts:

- Numbering (if necessary)
- Base: the parent chain (length and C/C bonding)
 - o First realise that there will be a complexity
- Suffix: substituents dictated by the highest priority functional group

1. Start off by identifying the highest priority functional group: this helps you determine the suffix of the molecule's name which can help you determine where you start numbering (if you are unsure). In subsequent paragraphs, however, I assume you begin to identify the parts of the molecule that will be needed for the prefix.

If you only have C and H atoms left you have hydrocarbons that are based on primary functional groups. The prefix is the only.

2. There begins to find the longest continuous carbon chain you can (the only thing is: branching is good)

- Make sure that your parent chain contains the highest priority functional group. Some groups have to be on the end carbon
 - o Carboxylic acids, aldehydes, nitriles, amines, amides
- Find the other side of the chain that most carbon branches (the more the more to keep complete structure)
- Always contain all the functional groups and multiple bonds in the structure

3. Begin to number the carbon, the lowest number that you can so that the most the substituents are present (number them by the following substituents (in order of priority):

- The highest priority functional group
- Any multiple bonds
- The substituent closest to the end
- The complete the name, then alphabetically

4. Once you have numbered the parent chain, present now the appropriate name to indicate the length of the chain.

5. Identify the system of substituents (which is done) present in the parent chain, and add letters to the prefix. Additionally, identify what is/are left of the chain (the other side of the chain)

- Only C/C single bonds: "and"
