

"Narrative" is a term more commonly known as "story." Narratives written for college or personal narratives, tell a story, usually to some point, to illustrate some truth or insight. Following are some tools to help you structure your personal narrative, breaking it down into parts.

Introduction

The "Hook" Start your paper with a statement about your story that catches the reader's attention, for example: a relevant quotation, question, fact, or definition.

Set the Scene Provide the information the reader will need to understand the story: Who are the major characters? When and where is it taking place? Is it a story about something that happened to you, the writer, or is it fiction?

Thesis Statement The thesis of a narrative essay plays a slightly different role than that of an argument or expository essay. A narrative thesis can begin the events of the story: "It was sunny and warm out when I started down the path"; offer a moral or lesson learned: "I'll never hike alone again"; or identify a theme that connects the story to a universal experience: "Journeys bring both joy and hardship."

Body Paragraph

"Show, Don't Tell" Good story telling includes details and descriptions that help the reader understand what the writer experienced. Think about using all five senses—not just the sense of sight—to add details about what you heard, saw, and felt during the event. For example, "My heart jumped as the dark shape of the brown grizzly lurched toward me out of the woods" provides more information about what the writer saw and felt than, "I saw a bear when I was hiking".

Supporting Evidence In a personal narrative, your experience acts as the evidence that proves your thesis. The events of the story should demonstrate the lesson learned, or the significance of the event to you.

Passage of Time Writing about the events of your experience using time chronologically, from beginning to end, is the most common and clear way to tell a story. Whether you choose to write chronologically or not, use transition words to clearly indicate to the reader what happened first, next, and last. Some time transition words are next, finally, during, after, when, and later.

Transitions In a narrative essay, a new paragraph marks a change in the action of a story, or a move from action to reflection. Paragraphs should connect to one another. For example, the end of one paragraph might be: "I turned and ran, hoping the bear hadn't noticed me", and the start of the next might be: "There are many strategies for surviving an encounter with a bear: 'turn and run' is not one of them." The repetition of words connects the paragraphs. (What does the change in verb tense indicate?)*

Conclusion

The Moral of the Story The conclusion of a narrative include the closing action of the event, but also should include some reflection or analysis of the significance of the event to the writer. What lesson did you learn? How has what happened to you affected your life now?

Essays and Arguments: A Handbook for Writing Student Essays Ian Johnston, 2015-04-28 How does one help undergraduate students learn quickly how to produce effectively organized persuasive well reasoned essays? This book offers a straightforward systematic introduction to some of the key elements of the construction of arguments in essay form. The focus here is on practical advice that will prove immediately useful to students. Recommended procedures are emphasized and detailed examples of academic and student writing are provided throughout. The book introduces the basics of argumentation before moving on to the structure and organization of essays. Planning and outlining the essay, writing strong thesis statements, organizing coherent paragraphs and writing effective introductions and conclusions are among the subjects discussed. A separate section concisely explores issues specific to essays about literary works.

Anthem Guide to Essay Writing Carole L. Hamilton, 2011 plan write and revise your essay draft Brighten Your English Writing Skills K. K. Singh, 2022-03-13 Every human knows at least one language spoken or signed. Linguistics is the science of language including the sounds, words and grammar rules. Words in languages are finite but sentences are not. It is this creative aspect of human language that sets it apart from animal languages which are essentially responses to stimuli. The rules of a language, also called grammar, are learned as one acquires a language. These rules include phonology, the sound system; morphology, the structure of words; syntax, the combination of words into sentences; semantics, the ways in which sounds and meanings are related; and the lexicon or mental dictionary of words. When you know a language you know words in that language. However, the sounds and meanings of words are arbitrary. For the most part, there is no relationship between the way a word is pronounced and its meaning.

It responds to the concerns of educators who get enthusiastic about teaching critical literacy but become perplexed when they start reading about its theories This causes some to avoid it altogether and leads others to argue for practicing it without theory The book argues that both positions should be reconsidered and capitalizes on the notion of praxis a notion introduced by Freire to explicate the various subtle connections between theory and practice The book instills the theoretical assumptions of critical literacy with as little jargon as possible with many practical illustrations It will be of interest to graduate and undergraduate students language teachers program and material developers researchers and educational policy makers Insights Into Second Language Reading Keiko Koda,2005-01-10 Publisher Description
