Gonzalez, 2016-06-10 The performance of most tasks with one hand typically the right is a uniquely human characteristic Not only do people prefer to use one hand rather than the other but also they usually perform tasks faster and more accurately with this hand The study of manual asymmetries and what such performance differences between the two hands reveal about brain organization and motor function has been a topic of considerable research over the last several decades The aim of this Research Topic is to review and further explore the origins of manual asymmetries and their relationship to handedness unimanual and bimanual motor performance and brain function The articles included here involve original research conducted in humans or non human models species as well as theoretical perspectives review articles and meta analyses

Expected Number of Maxima and Minima of a Stationary Random Process with Non-Gaussian Frequency Distribution Franklin W. Diederich,1957 A method is outlined for calculating the expected number of maxima or minima of a random process with non Gaussian frequency distribution from the statistical moments of the process and its first two derivatives This method is based on an estimate of the joint frequency function of the process and its first two derivatives given by mesm of a generalized form of Edgeworth s series the procedure thus consists essentially in applying a correction to the results for a Gaussian process The functions required in this procedure are calculated for the first two correction terms therefore the effects of skewness and kurtosis can be calculated provided the required moments are known Expressions are given for these moments in terms of multiple correlation functions and multi spectra and the relations between these functions for a random output of a linear system and those for the random input are indicated
