Making it tangible. Learning outcomes in science education Sascha Bernholt, Knut Neumann, Peter Nentwig, 2012 One of the central features in current educational reforms is a focus on learning outcomes Many countries have established or revised standards to describe what teachers are supposed to teach and students are expected to learn More recently the emphasis has shifted to considerations of how standards can be operationalized in order to make the outcomes of educational efforts more tangible This book is the result of a symposium held in Kiel that was arranged by two science education groups one at the IPN Leibniz Institute for Science and Mathematics Education at the University of Kiel in Germany and the other at the University of York UK The seminar brought together renowned experts from 12 countries with different notions of the nature and quality of learning outcomes The aim was to clarify central conceptions and approaches for a better understanding among the international science education community The book is divided into five parts In Part A the organizers set the scene describing the rationale for arranging the symposium Part B provides a broad overview about different approaches challenges and pitfalls on the road to the clarification of meaningful and fruitful learning outcomes The set of papers in Part C provides deep insights into different although comparable approaches which aim to frame to assess and to promote learning and learning outcomes in science education Smaller projects are presented as well as broad coordinated national programs The papers in Part D outline the individual historical development from different national perspectives reflecting the deficits and problems that led to current reforms Finally a summary of the organizers analyses the conclusions from different vantage points Testing and Assessment Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Children, Schools and Families Committee, 2008 Testing and Assessment Third report of session 2007 08 Vol 2 Oral and written Evidence Multilingual Testing and Assessment Gessica De Angelis, 2021-09-06 The field of multilingual testing and assessment has grown rapidly in recent years due to the widespread need to integrate immigrant populations into mainstream education and to provide fair and equitable forms of assessment for all students However a continuing emphasis on bilingual students has created a significant gap in testing and assessment research This book addresses the need for research and guidance on testing multilingual students at its heart is the difference between designing multilingual tests and testing multilingual individuals The author introduces an integrated approach to testing and assessment a flexible approach that combines information about multilingual learners knowledge skills and abilities with information about their language background and living environment The book provides an overview of existing research conducted with multilingual populations provides guidelines for test writers teachers and educators that outline the steps involved in the design administration scoring and interpretation of tests for multiple language speakers and demonstrates how to use the integrated approach to testing and assessment in a multilingual educational context How to Master Psychometric Tests Mark Parkinson, 2008 This book provides a detailed overview of what happens during a psychometric test session and gives a set of practical tools and strategies which will boost your chances of achieving test and career success     A Generation of Radical Educational Change Richard Pring, Martin Roberts, 2015-12-14 How much have teachers and their pupils benefitted from the top down Westminster led control of policy held in place by a powerful national inspection regime A Generation of Radical Educational Change Stories from the Field is an exploration of the revolutionary impact of the greater and continuing involvement of central government in education policy making which began in 1976 and was accelerated by the 1988 Education Act and subsequent legislation In the book a dozen distinguished contributors from a wide range of sectors explain and reflect on how they worked to do their best for their schools teachers and pupils in these years of great change They understand the reasons explained by Lord Baker in his early chapter for a National Curriculum in 1988 and also the reasons for a more effective national inspection system Yet their stories accumulate to become a powerful critique of the top down policies of the last two decades These policies have been too numerous short term incoherent and partisan governments have been indifferent to professional opinion and serious research and have relied excessively on measurable outcomes and simplistic Ofsted judgments Our current system is narrower and less democratic than it was but evidence is hard to find that English pupils are doing any better in international comparisons The combined reflections in this volume are timely in these years of lively educational debate as are the suggestions for future policy A Generation of Radical Educational Change is an invaluable read for current and aspiring headteachers policy makers and those with an interest in education policy and how it evolves
