Plant Ecophysiology: Responses to Climate Changes and Stress Conditions Srdjan Stojnic, Nacer Bellaloui, Raul Antonio Sperotto, Yanbo Hu, Georgios Koubouris, Peter Petrík, 2025-10-23 Climate change characterized by amplified frequency and amplitude of heat waves increased evaporative demand and altered precipitation patterns threatening the productivity and stability of ecosystems worldwide Previous research identified a number of abiotic and biotic stressors that affects plant physiology and contributes to natural ecosystems decline as well as crop yield failure Depending on their intensity and duration plant species may display a wide range of strategies and mechanisms to withstand environmental stress including physiological and biochemical responses as well as modulation in structural characteristics such as anatomy and morphology. However, despite the great progress made in understanding plant responses and tolerance to environmental stress factors, a holistic and systematic knowledge on the effect of multiple simultaneous and/or sequential stress factors and their interactions is still lacking. In addition, climate change imposes the alteration of a series of environmental factors simultaneously as well as intensify the severity of different stressful events such as drought, floods, salinity, and heat waves. Therefore, knowledge of how plants acclimate to multiple stressors is critical in understanding the effects of future climates on natural ecosystems, urban greenery, and agroforestry systems, i.e., tree crops interaction worldwide.
