Inflammation, and Neurodegeneration Caroline Haikal,Robert Weissert,2024-12-26 Aging is a major risk factor for several neurodegenerative diseases including Parkinson s and Alzheimer s disease The immune response is often dysregulated in aging leading to a predisposition towards a state of chronic inflammation The precise processes which support this inflammatory state are still a subject of debate however cell and tissue specific transcriptional changes in several immune related genes have been identified as potential drivers In addition to genetic changes losses in the bacterial diversity within the microbiome are also observed during aging However it is unclear whether this may be a cause or consequence of inflammation Host microbiome interactions are highly complex and are known to modulate the immune response in several ways For instance while bacteria and some bacterial byproducts such as short chain fatty acids can induce differentiation of regulatory T cells and stimulate secretion of anti inflammatory cytokines other byproducts can activate pathogen recognition receptors to induce inflammation Bacteria can also regulate the transcription of human genes that regulate immune homeostasis and pathogen response In turn microRNAs produced by the gut epithelium can regulate transcription in bacteria
