Assessment, Learning and Judgement in Higher Education Gordon Joughin, 2008-12-11 There has been a remarkable growth of interest in the assessment of student learning and its relation to the process of learning in higher education over the past ten years This interest has been expressed in various ways through large scale research projects international conferences the development of principles of assessment that supports learning a growing awareness of the role of feedback as an integral part of the learning process and the publication of exemplary assessment practices At the same time more limited attention has been given to the underlying nature of assessment to the concerns that arise when assessment is construed as a measurement process and to the role of judgement in evaluating the quality of students work It is now timely to take stock of some of the critical concepts that underpin our understanding of the multifarious relationships between assessment and learning and to explicate the nature of assessment as judgement Despite the recent growth in interest noted above assessment in higher education remains under conceptualized This book seeks to make a significant contribution to conceptualizing key aspects of assessment learning and judgement

Children's Rights and the Developing Law Jane Fortin, 2009-08-13 Following the implementation of the Human Rights Act 1998 awareness has increased that we live in a rights based culture and that children constitute an important group of rights holders Now in its third edition Children's Rights and the Developing Law explores the way developing law and policies in England and Wales are simultaneously promoting and undermining the rights of children It reflects on how far these developments take account of children's interests using current research on children's needs as a template against which to assess their effectiveness and considering a broad range of topics including medical law education and youth justice A critical approach is maintained throughout particularly when assessing the extent to which the concept of children's rights is being acknowledged by the courts and policy makers and the degree to which the UK fulfils its obligations under for example the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child

Distant Publics Jennifer Rice, 2012-08-19 Urban sprawl is omnipresent in America and has left many citizens questioning their ability to stop it In Distant Publics Jenny Rice examines patterns of public discourse that have evolved in response to development in urban and suburban environments Centering her study on Austin Texas Rice finds a city that has simultaneously celebrated and despised development Rice outlines three distinct ways that the rhetoric of publics counteracts development through injury claims memory claims and equivalence claims In injury claims rhetors frame themselves as victims in a dispute Memory claims allow rhetors to anchor themselves to an older deliberative space rather than to a newly evolving one Equivalence claims see the benefits on both sides of an issue and here rhetors effectively become nonactors Rice provides case studies of development disputes that place the reader in the middle of real life controversies and evidence her theories of claims based public rhetorics She finds that these methods comprise the most common though not exclusive vernacular surrounding development and shows how each is often counterproductive to its own goals Rice further demonstrates that these claims create a particular role or public subjectivity grounded in one's own feelings which serves to distance publics from each other and the issues at hand Rice argues that rhetoricians have a duty to transform current patterns of public development discourse so that all individuals may engage in matters of crisis She articulates its sustainability as both a goal and future disciplinary challenge of rhetorical studies and offers tools and methodologies toward that end

Mark Pelling, David Manuel-Navarrete, Michael Redclift, 2012-08-21 Are established economic social and political practices capable of dealing with the combined crises of climate change and the global economic system Will falling back on the wisdoms that contributed to the crisis help us to find ways forward or simply reconfigure risk in another guise This volume argues that the combination of global environmental change and global economic restructuring require a re thinking of the priorities processes and underlying values that shape contemporary development aspirations and policy This volume brings together leading scholars to address these questions from several disciplinary perspectives environmental sociology human geography international development systems thinking political sciences philosophy economics and policy management science The book is divided into four sections that examine contemporary development discourses and practices It bridges geographical and disciplinary divides and includes chapters on innovative governance that confront unsustainable economic and environmental relations in both developing and developed contexts It emphasises the ways in which dominant development paths have necessarily forced a separation of individuals from nature but also from society and even from self These three levels of alienation each form a thread that runs through the book There are different levels and opportunities for a transition towards resilience raising questions surrounding identity governance and ecological management This places resilience at the heart of the contemporary crisis of capitalism and speaks to the relationship between the increasingly global forms of economic development and the difficulties in framing solutions to the environmental problems that carbon based development brings in its wake Existing social science can help in not only identifying the challenges but also potential pathways for making change locally and in wider political economic and cultural systems but it must do so by identifying transitions out of carbon dependency and the kind of political challenges they imply for reflexive individuals and alternative community approaches to human security and wellbeing Climate Change and the Crisis of Capitalism contains contributions from leading scholars to produce a rich and cohesive set of arguments from a range of theoretical and empirical viewpoints It analyses the problem of resilience under existing circumstances but also goes beyond this to seek ways in which resilience can provide a better pathway and template for a more sustainable future This volume will be of interest to both undergraduate and postgraduate students studying Human Geography Environmental Policy and Politics Traumatic
