

Chapter 10: Models for Processing and the Understanding Process

Education 1980

2. Knowledge Base

1. What are the 10 key propositional processes?

1. Processing the sentence.
2. Processing words in all cases and in all conditions.
3. Representing structure in continuous form, not with discrete blocks.
4. Representational processes are continuous and processing are different.
5. This needs to be a continuous representation. All patterns have a beginning.
6. An individual brings with himself the knowledge of the other knowledge he has available.
7. Subjects and responses operate sequentially. The system and the other system have a relationship.
8. In our model, the representation is continuous and the processing is discrete. The relationship with other knowledge is represented as a discrete unit.
9. The system has a continuous representation of the other knowledge and the processing is discrete. The relationship with other knowledge is represented as a discrete unit.
10. To move from general to specific, the system has a continuous representation of the other knowledge and the processing is discrete. The relationship with other knowledge is represented as a discrete unit.
11. Two things that help processing are: processing and representation.
12. Two things that help processing are: processing and representation.
