Experimental models of early exposure to alcohol: a way to unravel the neurobiology of mental retardation Alberto Granato, Andrea De Giorgio, 2015-01-27 Excessive alcohol drinking represents a major social and public health problem for several countries Alcohol abuse during pregnancy leads to a complex syndrome referred to as fetal alcohol spectrum disorders FASD chiefly characterized by mental retardation The effects of early exposure to ethanol can be reproduced in laboratory animals and this helped to answer several key questions concerning the human pathology The interest of experimental models of FASD is twofold First they increase our knowledge about the dose and modality of alcohol consumption able to induce damaging effects on the developing brain Second experimental models of FASD can provide useful hints to elucidate the basic mechanisms leading to the intellectual disability In fact experimental exposure to alcohol can be carried out during discrete often very restricted time windows As a consequence FASD models though depending on the multifaceted interference of alcohol with several molecular pathways can provide valuable information about which specific developmental periods and brain areas are critically involved in the genesis of mental retardation Putting together data obtained through several experimental paradigms of alcohol exposure and those deriving from other genetic and non genetic models one can figure out to what extent different types of mental retardation share common pathogenetic mechanisms The present Research Topic is aimed at establishing the state of the art of the current research on experimental FASD focusing on differences and homologies with other types of intellectual disability The ultimate goal is to find out a common roadmap in view of future therapeutical approaches

Improving outcomes in cerebral palsy with early intervention: new translational approaches Anna Purna Basu, Gavin John Clowry, 2015-03-30 The aim of this Research Topic was to collate articles describing prediction of outcomes of pre and perinatal lesions leading to cerebral palsy basic research in animal models and human subjects and ideas for and trials of interventions in the first two years of life CP arises from insults to the sensorimotor cortex subcortical axon tracts and subplate The aetiology is complex and often multifactorial The outcome is not simply a loss of voluntary control due to disruption of descending pathways but also involves abnormal development of reflex and corticospinal circuitry CP may be viewed as aberrant plasticity in response to a lesion indeed abnormalities in movement are subtle at first but develop subsequently It is misleading to suppose that developmental mechanisms are self reparative The challenge is to understand activitydependent fine tuning of neural circuitry during normal development and to find how to promote desirable plasticity whilst limiting undesirable effects following developmental lesions However before proposing interventions we have to develop our ability to predict the severity of neonatal insults We solicited a variety of articles including long and short reviews original research and opinion pieces from both basic scientists and clinicians Likewise we as editors have complementary knowledge and experience in this area Anna Basu is an academic pediatric neurologist and Gavin Clowry is a developmental neuroscientist The Politics and Possibilities of Self-Tracking Technology Suneel Jethani,2021-06-18 The Politics and Possibilities of Self Tracking Technology focuses on the dialectical relationship between users and designers of wearable technology to examine how datafication processes redefine the body and explores what this means for the design administration and study of self tracking systems
