UNIT 3: CULTURAL PATTERNS AND PROCESSES

Cultural landscapes are combinations of physical features, agricultural and industrial practices, religious and linguistic characteristics, evidence of permanent settlements, and other expressions of culture (including traditional and postmodern architecture and land use patterns).

Attitudes toward ethnicity and gender, including the role of women in the workforce, ethnic neighborhoods, and religious communities and trends help shape the use of space in a given way.

- Cultural landscapes sometimes:
  - Reflect a region's history
  - Contribute to a region's identity
  - Represent a region's physical features
- Elements of culture in the human landscape:
  - Physical features: natural features that shape the human landscape
  - Human features: human-made features that shape the human landscape
  - Language: the study of words, sentences, and grammar
  - Religion: the study of beliefs, practices, and rituals
  - Ethnicity: the study of groups of people who share common ancestry, culture, and language
  - Gender: the study of the roles and relationships of men and women in a society
- Ethnic neighborhoods: areas that are inhabited by members of a particular ethnic group, often in a city or town. They are often characterized by a high concentration of people from the same ethnic group.

Language, ethnicity, and religion contribute to a sense of place, which is the global context of a place.

Language, ethnicity, and religion are factors creating centrifugal and centripetal forces.

- Centrifugal forces: forces that pull people apart
  - Ethnic neighborhoods: areas that are inhabited by members of a particular ethnic group, often in a city or town.

• English: the most common language in the United States	• Christianity: the most common religion in the United States	• American: the most common ethnicity in the United States

Religion and language - including religious, linguistic, and ethnic expression - are types of differences.

Differences among people can be caused by a variety of factors.

- Religion: the study of beliefs, practices, and rituals
- Language: the study of words, sentences, and grammar
- Ethnicity: the study of groups of people who share common ancestry, culture, and language
- Gender: the study of the roles and relationships of men and women in a society

Interactions between and among cultural traits and larger global forces can lead to new forms of cultural expression, for example, globalization and hybrid forms.

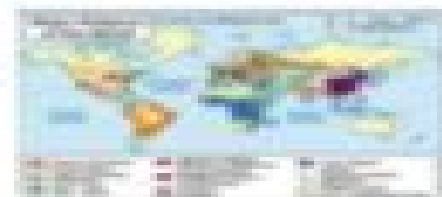

- Globalization: the process by which the world's economies, cultures, and politics become increasingly interconnected
- Hybrid forms: new forms of cultural expression that result from the interaction of different cultural traits

Globalization, immigration, and trade helped to shape patterns and practices of culture.

- Immigration: the movement of people from one country to another
- Trade: the exchange of goods and services between different countries

- Globalization: the process by which the world's economies, cultures, and politics become increasingly interconnected
- Immigration: the movement of people from one country to another
- Trade: the exchange of goods and services between different countries
