Endoplasmic reticulum - shape and function in stress translation Patrick Schäfer,Lorenzo Frigerio,Federica Brandizzi,Stephen H Howell,2015-05-05 The endoplasmic reticulum ER is a manufacturing unit in eukaryotic cells required for the synthesis of proteins lipids metabolites and hormones Besides supporting cellular signalling networks by its anabolic function the ER on its own or in communication with other organelles directly initiates signalling processes of physiological significance Based on the intimate and immediate involvement in stress signalling the ER is considered as sensory organelle on which cells strongly rely to effectively translate environmental cues into adaptive stress responses The transcellular distribution of the ER providing comprehensive cell to cell connections in multicellular organisms probably allows a concerted action of cell alliances and tissue areas towards environmental constraints At the cellular level stress adaptation correlates with the capability of the ER machinery to synthesise proteins participating in stress signalling as well as in the activation of ER membrane localised proteins to start cell protective signalling processes Importantly depending on the stress insult the ER either supports protective strategies or initiates cell death programmes Recent genetic molecular and cell biological studies have drawn an initial picture of underlying signalling events activated by ER membrane localised proteins In this Research Topic we provided a platform for articles describing research on ER morphology and metabolism with a focus on stress translation The Research Topic is sub divided into the following sections 1 ER in stress signalling and adaptation 2 ER structure and biosynthetic functions 3 Regulation of protein processing 4 Regulation of programmed cell death

Revisiting the Self Charalambos Tsekeris,2017-10-02 Who am I Or even more curiously who are you These are questions about the self that aspect of who we are that we believe defines or at least describes each of us The self is not merely an internal creation however Family friends colleagues and acquaintances all contribute to who we are and more importantly they help to shape who we think we are In this innovative and thought provoking book the various social aspects of the self and its construction are imaginatively explored Such explorations can seem abstractly academic but they carry great significance Knowledge of how the self is constructed has many implications for most social processes for example understanding the volatility of the notion of self that can provide the basis for terrorist radicalisation can generate destructive suicidal tendencies or can foment aggressive national identities This interdisciplinary collection is relevant not only for theoretical and methodological elaborations but also for more practical considerations The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Contemporary Social Science and two articles from Self and Identity

Emotion and Aging: Recent Evidence from Brain and Behavior Natalie Ebner,Håkan

Fischer,2015-05-05 Emotions play a central role in every human life from the moment we are born until we die They prepare the body for action guide decisions and highlight what should be noticed and remembered Since emotions are central to daily functioning and well being it is important to understand the extent to which aging affects the perception of attention to memory for as well as experience and regulation of emotions An early scientific view of how people s emotions are affected by aging argued that aging led to a deterioration of emotional function This theory represented by for example Carl Jung 1875 1961 claimed that old age is a period of life when people feel an increased emotional sameness and less emotional energy According to this scientific view the aging emotional landscape was bleached barren and flattened Current psychological research however shows that emotion is rather a psychological domain that is relatively unaffected by the aging process or even improves with age in contrast to most cognitive functions For example even though there is evidence that aging is associated with deficits in emotion recognition various emotional functions seem to remain intact or become better with age such as the ability to regulate one s emotions or the extent of experiencing positive emotions However more research is needed to determine brain and behavior related quantitative and qualitative age related changes of different aspects of emotion processing and emotional functioning In the current Frontiers research topic we aim to present exciting new findings related to the effects of healthy aging on both more perceptually driven bottom up as well as more cognitively driven top down aspects of emotions In particular questions such as the following need to be raised and addressed What neural and behavioral processes are underlying age differences in emotion perception and memory for emotional information Are there differences between how older and younger adults experience and regulate their emotions and what drives these differences Is there a gradual reduction or more of a qualitative change of our emotional experiences over the life cycle from the turbulent childhood and youth to the mellower old age And what aspects of age related changes in emotional processing can be explained by age related changes in the brain and which are more affected by other factors such as changes in other body systems in experiential processes or in overall life goals

Food and Cooking Skills Education Anita

Tull,2018-01-29 Food and Cooking Skills Education FCSE is a complex mix of policy and practicality educational theory and pedagogy classroom and government policy This book shows how FCSE has been at the centre of a tussle between education and policy for decades It reviews how FCSE has grappled with various significant issues of concern that threaten to marginalise it and pose problems for educational practicalities as expectations are increased but resources are squeezed It assesses the debate about the significance and importance of acquiring practical food and cooking skills in a society where the purchase of ready made food has become commonplace and public knowledge of where our food comes from is noticeably lacking This has contributed to the escalating incidence of diet related diseases and the attendant cost to society and threatened environmental sustainability In turn governments have reacted by proposals to make practical cooking skills a statutory National Curriculum subject as part of the armoury for tackling such costs Based on detailed research conducted across England and Wales as well as comparisons with thirty five other countries or states the author makes recommendations for policy to manage this challenge facing contemporary society

Sense of Agency: Examining Awareness of the Acting Self Nicole David,James W Moore,Sukhvinder Obhi,2015-07-24 The sense of agency is defined as the sense of oneself as the agent of one s own actions This also allows oneself to feel distinct from others and contributes to the subjective phenomenon of self consciousness Gallagher 2000 Distinguishing oneself from others is arguably one of the most important functions of the human brain Even minor impairments in this ability profoundly affect the individual s functioning in society as demonstrated by psychiatric and neurological syndromes involving agency disturbances Della Sala et al 1991 Franck et al 2001 Frith 2005 Sirigu et al 1999 But the sense of agency also plays a role for cultural and religious phenomena such as voodoo superstition and gambling in which individuals experience subjective control over objectively uncontrollable entities Wegner 2003 Furthermore it plays into ethical and law questions concerning responsibility and guilt For these reasons a better understanding of the sense of agency has been important for neuroscientists clinicians philosophers of mind and the general society alike Significant progress has been made in this regard For example philosophical scrutiny has helped establish the conceptual boundaries of the sense of agency Bayne 2011 Gallagher 2000 2012 Pacherie 2008 Synofzik et al 2008 and scientific investigations have shed light on the neurocognitive basis of sense of agency including the brain regions supporting sense of agency Chambon et al 2013 David et al 2007 Farrer et al 2003 2008 Spengler et al 2009 Tsakiris et al 2010 Yomogida et al 2010 Despite this progress there remain a number of outstanding questions such as Are there cross cultural differences in the sense of agency How does the sense of agency develop in infants or change across the lifespan How does social context influence sense of agency What neural networks support sense of agency i e connectivity and communication between brain regions What are the temporal dynamics with respect to neural processes underlying the sense of agency i e the what and when of agency processing How can different cue models of the sense of agency be further specified and empirically supported especially with regards to cue integration weighting What are the applications of sense of agency research clinically engineering etc The concept of the sense of agency offers intriguing avenues for knowledge transfer across disciplines and interdisciplinary empirical approaches especially in addressing the afore mentioned outstanding questions The aim of the present research topic is to promote and facilitate such interdisciplinarity for a better understanding of why and how we typically experience our own actions so naturally and undoubtedly as ours and what goes awry when we do not We thus welcome contributions from for example i neuroscience and psychology including development psychology neuroscience ii psychiatry and neurology iii philosophy iv robotics and v computational modeling In addition to empirical or scientific studies of the sense of agency we also encourage theoretical contributions including reviews models and opinions
