Insights and Strategies for Teaching about Race Sexuality and Gender is a collection of essays from scholars across disciplines institutions and ranks that offers diverse and multi faceted approaches to teaching about subjects that prove both challenging and often uncomfortable for both the professor and the student It encourages college educators to engage in forms of practice that do not pretend that teachers and students are unaffected by world events and incidents that highlight social inequalities Readers will find the collected essays useful for identifying new approaches to taking on the difficult subjects of race gender and sexuality The book will also serve as inspiration for academics who believe that their area of study does not allow for such pedagogical inquiries to also teach in ways that address difficult subjects Contributors to this volume span a range of disciplines from criminal justice to gender studies to organic chemistry and demonstrate the productive possibilities that can emerge in college classrooms when faculty consider identity as constitutive of rather than divorced from their academic disciplines Discussions of race gender and sexuality are always hot button issues in the college classroom whether they emerge in response to a national event or tragedy or constitute the content of the class over a semester long term Even seasoned professors who specialize in these areas find it difficult to talk about identity politics in a room full of students And many professors for whom issues of racial and sexual identity is not a primary concern find it even more challenging to raise these issues with students Offering reflections and practical guidance the book accounts for a range of challenges facing college educators and encourages faculty to teach with courage and conviction especially when it feels as though the world around us is crashing down upon our students and ourselves

Neuroscience, Learning and Educational Psychology María Jesús Luque

Rojas,Eduardo Blanco Calvo,María Teresa Martín-Aragoneses,2022-08-25 Modern Mathematics Dirk De Bock,2023-03-08

The international New Math developments between about 1950 through 1980 are regarded by many mathematics educators and education historians as the most historically important development in curricula of the twentieth century It attracted the attention of local and international politicians of teachers and of parents and influenced the teaching and learning of mathematics at all levels kindergarten to college graduate in many nations After garnering much initial support it began to attract criticism But as Bill Jacob and the late Jerry Becker show in Chapter 17 some of the effects became entrenched This volume edited by Professor Dirk De Bock of Belgium provides an outstanding overview of the New Math modern mathematics movement Chapter authors provide exceptionally high quality analyses of the rise of the movement and of subsequent developments within a range of nations The first few chapters show how the initial leadership came from mathematicians in European nations and in the United States of America The background leaders in Europe were Caleb Gattegno and members of a mysterious group of mainly French pure mathematicians who since the 1930s had published under the name of a fictitious Nicolas Bourbaki In the United States there emerged during the 1950s various attempts to improve U S mathematics curricula and teaching especially in secondary schools and colleges This side of the story climaxed in 1957 when the Soviet Union succeeded in launching Sputnik the first satellite Undoubtedly this is a landmark publication in education The foreword was written by Professor Bob Moon one of a few other scholars to have written on the New Math from an international perspective The final epilogue chapter by Professor Geert Vanpaemel a historian draws together the overall thrust of the volume and makes links with the general history of curriculum development especially in science education including recent globalization trends

Equity and Internationalization on Campus Kaela Jubas,2018-09-11

Every day we hear how people organizations and ideas are moving across borders We also hear about fairness and justice as fundamental social values How though do these two discourses one related to internationalization and the other to equity converge in lived experience The post secondary institution is one setting where that question might be asked and people who are minoritized for their gender or sexual identities can provide important answers While equity oriented discourses assure LGBT people that they will be free from harassment and discrimination an internationalization discourse might call them to engage in places where they are illegal Equity and Internationalization on Campus shares findings from a Canadian study that explored how LGBT or ally post secondary faculty students and staff encountered these two discourses It offers much to scholars and staff committed to developing an equitable version of internationalization and an international version of equity

Marine Ecosystem Restoration (MER) - Challenges and New Horizons Brian Silliman,Avigdor Abelson,Christine Angelini,Gesche Krause,Megan Irene Saunders,Tjisse Van Der Heide,2023-10-23 Worldwide marine ecosystems have been lost and degraded due to anthropogenic disturbances For example oyster reefs have declined by at least 85% coral reefs by 19% seagrasses by 29% North American salt marshes by 42% and mangroves by 35% from the early 19th century Deepwater reefs and deep sea vents are not immune and have also been reduced in extent in many areas Factors driving these losses include habitat destruction pollution invasive species overfishing trawling mining and more recently climate change effects such as ocean warming species range changes and acidification These habitat declines are occurring at a time when marine waters are being used at or near their maximum productive capacity to meet the contemporary needs of an ever increasing human population Because coastal and marine ecosystems generate some of the richest biodiversity hotspots on Earth and provide critical ecosystem services including storm protection fisheries production and carbon storage over 1 billion US dollars have been spent globally in an attempt to halt and reverse observed declines Early conservation efforts aimed at protecting these valuable and threatened habitats focused on reducing human impacts and physical stressors However with habitat degradation continuing and sometimes increasing in rate it is now clear conservation alone will not be sufficient to protect and reestablish coastal ecosystems Habitat restoration although in existence for many decades has recently been elevated as a new primary strategy to stem and even reverse coastal habitat loss The call for increasing investment in restoration efforts has emerged with significant advances in propagule rearing and dispersion of habitat forming organisms e g oysters seagrasses corals In addition restoration resources are increasingly allocated by governments and or large corporations with the aim to for example fix past landscape engineering efforts that had unintended environmental consequences Such investments are being made to i provide jobs for those unemployed during economic downturns ii restore ecosystems destroyed by natural disasters and stressors iii increase coastal defense in response to increased frequency of intense storms and or iv compensate for pollution and development driven habitat degradation Conservation practitioners have traditionally been skeptical to invest heavily in restoration at large scales because of the high cost per area 10 000 5 000 000 US ha for coastal vs 500 5 000 US ha for terrestrial systems to replant coastal ecosystems and or the high chance that the restored ecosystems will not live long e g outplanted corals For restoration to be effective and employed as a primary method of coastal conservation at relevant scales we must improve its efficiency lower costs and rapidly share and incorporate advances One crucial step will be to identify when and where restoration attempts have been carried out according to state of art ecological theory and gauge their success Another is generating synthesis studies that focus both within and across ecosystems to identify efficiencies adaptations and innovations

Work that shows theoretical and methodological innovations in specific ecosystems as well as across systems will be critical to pushing all fields of MER forward. Although there is rapidly increasing interest and investment, the field of marine ecosystem restoration is just beginning to undergo synthesis. Therefore, the aim of this Research Topic is to bring together research contributions to help address this synthesis need, provide a spotlight for recent innovations, enhance our understanding of successful methods in marine ecosystem restoration, and promote integration of ecological, sociological, and engineering theory into restoration practices.

Education in Vietnam Martin Hayden, Thi Le Tran, 2024-08-02. Offering insights into the current and projected future state of the education system in Vietnam, this edited volume is an authoritative sourcebook for scholars, policy analysts, academic staff, and students. Vietnam is well on its way to joining the dress circle of high-achieving education nations in Asia. International surveys of the academic aptitude and ability of the nation's youth consistently place it well above relevant regional and global averages. This accomplishment is remarkable for a country with a gross domestic product per capita of only US 2 785 in 2020. The dynamics of Vietnam's national education system are comprehensively documented in the book. Each of the country's education sectors is critically appraised, as well as the culture of education in Vietnam. Specific issues concerning funding and equity, quality and accreditation, the teaching of curriculum areas, the internationalisation of the system, and the provision of educational opportunities for young people with disabilities are carefully analysed against a background of relevant global trends. With contributions from well-established and highly respected local experts with high aspirations for the future development of the national education system in Vietnam, this book will be a must-read for academics and students of Southeast Asian studies and comparative education.

Advancing Self-Directed Learning in Higher Education Mncube, Dumsani Wilfred, Maphalala, Mncedisi Christian, 2023-05-01. Self-directed learning (SDL) is considered a core concept in problem-based learning (PBL) and student-centered learning. More importantly, the current face-to-face model of curriculum implementation faces many challenges that seem to question its dominance over other models. The violent nature of the COVID-19 pandemic has again vindicated SDL. Practitioners and research enthusiasts continue seeking solutions that will enhance skills to cope in a rapidly changing technological, globalized world. However, the higher education sector is challenged when promoting SDL due to a slow pace of digital integration since the education system is not fully transformed.
