

However, before using these simplified equations, it is best to calculate the full set of equations for each cell and then use the simplified equations. The difference is that the full set of equations (larger) would give you a better understanding of the results.

22. Please identify the structure highlighted in red, its shape (circle) and the substituents attached.

11. There is the possibility of identifying an unstratified subsample (which may or may not be stratified) of observations, and identifying a subsample of the results of a subsample.
