Paper 7010/11

Paper 11

General comments

The standard of candidates' work was slightly higher than that shown in June 2012. As with 2012, there are still some areas where improvements could be made, but the overall standard proved again to be very satisfactory. Two areas in particular where candidates continue to be weak are an understanding of how web sites work and questions which involve understanding how GPS technology works. However, questions involving trace tables and logic circuits proved to be very successful indicating some very sound teaching into the basic principles required for these topics.

There is also a continued move to questions where candidates have to apply their knowledge rather than just show their ability to simply remember facts. There is strong evidence that this is producing candidates who are now exhibiting a far better understanding and application of the syllabus topics than in past exam papers.

Comments on specific questions

Section A

Question 1

This question was reasonably well answered with most candidates adhering to the instruction to give four different examples of sensors. The main errors were centred on the usual incorrect sensors such as heat sensor or movement sensor, neither of which actually exist.

Question 2

This question produced a wide range of responses with the full range of marks from 0 to 6 being seen. The answers ranged from perfect pieces of code to answers which gave a description of what the loop did. A number of candidates were under the impression that IF ... THEN and CASE ... OF constructs were examples of loops.

Question 3

- (a) There were no real problems here, however some candidates would benefit from further developing their knowledge of chat rooms and cookies.
- (b) The standard of answers here was very variable. Some candidates gave excellent descriptions of the five terms whilst others produced unclear responses such as: "chat rooms are where people chat on the Internet" or "cookies give the user their Internet history" – neither of these answers explained the terms in a way which warranted any real credit.

Question 4

- (a) This question caused very few problems. However some candidates would benefit from reinforcing their knowledge of ring and star network topologies as some did call part (i) a circle and part (ii) a tree or a bus.
- (b) The majority of candidates gained marks for the benefits of networking computers e.g. sharing of hardware and/or software resources such as printers. However, very few gave acceptable answers for the drawbacks. Many answers were close, such as "risk of viruses/hacking" or "it is expensive" – neither gained a mark since the first answer needed to indicate that there was an increased risk from spreading viruses/hacking when networking computers and, in the second

Zelkowitz,2005-05-13 Although software engineering can trace its beginnings to a NATO conf ence in 1968 it cannot be said to have become an empirical science until the 1970s with the advent of the work of Prof Victor Robert Basili of the University of Maryland In addition to the need to engineer software was the need to understand software Much like other sciences such as physics chemistry and biology software engineering needed a discipline of observation theory formation experimentation and feedback By applying the scientific method to the software engineering domain Basili developed concepts like the Goal Question Metric method the Quality Improvement Paradigm and the Experience Factory to help bring a sense of order to the ad hoc developments so prevalent in the software engineering field On the occasion of Basili's 65th birthday we present this book containing reprints of 20 papers that defined much of his work We divided the 20 papers into 6 sections each describing a different facet of his work and asked several individuals to write an introduction to each section Instead of describing the scope of this book in this preface we decided to let one of his papers the keynote paper he gave at the International Conference on Software Engineering in 1996 in Berlin Germany to lead off this book He better than we can best describe his views on what is experimental software engineering
