shenanigans of two boys running free and straight into danger and life's lessons Your Library Is the Answer Christina T. Russo, Cathy Swan, 2015-01-22 Today's tech savvy and digitally connected students present a new challenge for today's school librarians. This book offers the 21st century tools and know-how necessary for educators to appeal to and challenge students to learn and to want to learn. What are the best ways to motivate students to become engaged and develop a passion for learning? Can appealing to their desire for socialization and constant communication attributes of their lives outside of education via the integration of cutting-edge technologies and new media in the library or classroom serve to ignite creativity, curiosity, and critical thinking? This book shows how you can make use of non-traditional tools such as popular social networks, collaborative technologies, and cloud computing to teach information and communications technologies integrated with the school curriculum to improve student learning and demonstrates how these same technologies can help you measure skills and mastery learning. The book provides an easy-to-follow blueprint for using collaborative techniques, innovation, and teaching for creativity to achieve the new learning paradigm of self-directed learning such as flipping the classroom or library. Readers of this book will find concrete step-by-step examples of proven lesson plans, collaborative models, and time-saving strategies for the successful integration of American Association of School Librarians (AASL) standards. The authors, both award-winning teachers, explain the quantitatively and qualitatively measurable educational value of using these technologies for core curricular and information and communications technologies instruction, showing that they both enhance student learning outcomes and provide data for measuring their impact on learning.

High-Stakes Testing R. Murray Thomas, 2005-03-23 The federal government's No Child Left Behind Act has thrust high-stakes testing, its goals, methods, and consequences into the educational limelight. The four-fold purpose of this book is to describe the nature of high-stakes testing; identify types of collateral damage that have attended the testing programs; analyze methods different groups of people have chosen for coping with the damage; and suggest lessons to be learned from the high-stakes testing experience. The six groups of people whose coping strategies are inspected include politicians and their staffs, educational administrators and their staffs, parents and the public, test makers and test administrators, teachers and students. Importantly, the author avoids aligning himself with the test-bashing rhetoric of those who oppose high-stakes testing, especially the No Child Left Behind Act. Key features of this outstanding new book include illustrative cases. The book offers more than 350 cases of collateral damage from high-stakes testing and people's coping strategies as reported in newspapers over the 2002-2004 period. Background perspectives: Part I examines the influence of high-stakes testing on 1) what schools teach, 2) how student progress is evaluated, 3) how achievement standards are set, and 4) how test results are used. Participant responses: Part II, which is the heart of the book, devotes a separate chapter to the coping strategies of each of the major participants in the high-stakes testing movement: politicians and their staffs, educational administrators and their staffs, parents and the public, test makers and test givers, teachers, and students. Summary chapter: The last chapter, Lessons to Learn, offers suggestions for minimizing collateral damage by adopting alternative approaches not used in the creation of our current high stakes testing programs particularly the federal government's No Child Left Behind Act This book is appropriate for any of the following audiences students taking evaluation or administration courses in schools of education inservice administrators and teachers policy makers and those members of the general public who are concerned about the fate of schooling in America
