

WHAT IS A CONSTITUTIONAL MONARCHY?

READ THE PASSAGE BELOW AND ANSWER THE GUIDED QUESTIONS . HIGHLIGHT YOUR ANSWERS IN THE PASSAGE TO EXPLAIN YOUR REASONING.

What is a Constitutional Monarchy?

A constitutional monarchy is a type of government where there is a king or queen, but their powers are limited by laws or a constitution. In this system, the monarch is the head of state, but they don't have complete control over the government. Instead, elected officials, like a prime minister or parliament, run the government and make most of the decisions.

The monarch's role is mostly ceremonial, which means they represent the country at special events, but they don't make laws or control the government's day-to-day activities.

How Does a Constitutional Monarchy Work?

In a constitutional monarchy, the country has two parts to its government: the monarch and an elected government. The monarch's powers are defined by a set of laws, like a constitution, which limits what they can and cannot do.

Most decisions are made by the elected officials. Citizens in these countries vote for members of parliament or a similar group, and these elected leaders decide on laws and policies. The monarch might meet with the government and give advice, but they cannot rule alone.
