Mass Media, Consumerism and National Identity in Postwar Japan Martyn David Smith,2018-04-05 Mass Media Consumerism and National Identity in Postwar Japan addresses Japan s evolving nationalism and national identity in relation to its newly rising consumerism during the two decades from 1952 to 1972 through a study of the transformation of the print media and the market for weekly and monthly magazines Martyn Smith argues that the transformation of the print media in the 1950s and 1960s expanded the possibilities for social individual and national identities in Japan From the late 1950s the growth in the market for weekly magazines was fuelled by the huge potential for advertising revenue the rapid development of the Japanese economy and the necessity for the growth of a consumer society This resulted in the merging of national identity with individual subjectivity which this book describes as national subjectivity as the Japanese media promoted individual consumption to aid the recovery of the Japanese nation as a whole Examining housewife magazines such as Fujin Koron Fujin no Tomo and Fujin Gaho as well as news magazines such as Mainichi Graph and Asahi Graph and publications aimed at young people Shukan Heibon and Heibon Punch Smith shows how the relationship of nationalism to everyday life is best understood by taking into account the changing nature of consumption in the period By presenting an alternative to the traditional top down narrative of state driven economic nationalism this book therefore makes a unique contribution to the study of postwar Japanese history and Japanese nationalism

Post-War Childhood Simon Webb, 2017-05-31 Many British baby boomers are very nostalgic about a supposed golden age, a vanished world when children were generally freer happier and healthier than they are now They wandered about all day only returning home at teatime when they were hungry Nobody worried about health and safety or stranger danger in those days and no serious harm ever befell children as a result In Post War Childhood Simon Webb examines the facts and figures behind the myth of children's carefree lives in the post war years finding that such things as the freedom to roam the streets and fields came at a terrible price In 1965 for example despite there being far fewer cars in Britain 45 times as many children were knocked down and killed on the roads as now die in this way each year Simon Webb presents awarts and all portrait of British childhood in the years following the end of the Second World War He demonstrates that contrary to popular belief it was by any measure a far more hazardous and less pleasant time to be a child than is the case in the twenty first century The Wheel Extended, 1986 Toyota quarterly review

The Changing Identity of Rural India Elisabetta Basile, Ishita Mukhopadhyay, 2009 The book explores the pattern of rural development in contemporary India from a multidisciplinary and historical perspective The essays overcome the limits of disciplinary approaches to provide a comprehensive analysis of the processes of change and growth at work in the Indian countryside and to review the social and cultural dynamics that have led to the contemporary situation Providing an analysis of the economic political and social changes experienced in rural India they examine the interactions between actors and institutions at different levels Some contributions focus on the impact of state policies on rural development and on the rationale of capitalistic expansion in the Indian countryside while others analyse how the changes are promoted adopted and resisted at the local level The general issue raised in the book refers to the assessment of the nature and working of contemporary Indian rural economy In order to analyse the complexity of the rural economy and the forms it takes in different Indian contexts this issue has been deconstructed considering in turn the process of rural change the impact of rural growth on working and living conditions and finally the categories of the inhabitants of rural areas and the construction of their identities in colonial and post colonial rural India
