Electronic Community-Oriented Policing Xiaochen Hu, Nicholas P. Lovrich, 2020-08-05 Hu and Lovrich introduce the electronic community oriented policing E COP concept to explore how social media can impact police strategies on improving and maintaining police public relation Using empirical evidence and theoretical foundations this book demonstrates the importance of this timely refinement to traditional community oriented policing strategies as we move further into the twentieth century E COP represents a systematic approach to policing that applies knowledge derived from theories of individual behavior social behavior and mass communication dynamics to contemporary policing practice This book would be of interest to policing researchers scholars and students as well as police practitioners wishing to improve their use of social media resources to connect to the public they serve in the digital age      Criminal Fraud and Election Disinformation Jeremy Horder, 2022-02-17 Criminal Fraud and Election Disinformation is about the state's approach to fraud and distortion of the truth in politics especially during election campaigns Deliberate mischaracterisation of political opponents and their policies has always been a part of politics however lying dishonesty and distortion of the facts remain morally wrong and have the potential to obstruct important political interests For example a false or misleading claim publicised about an election candidate may lead someone to lose an election that they might otherwise have won So does and should the law seek to provide protection from the risk of this happening by directly prohibiting the making of false or misleading political claims or by obliging internet platforms to censor such content In attempting to answer this question Jeremy Horder draws a key distinction between what is called political viewpoint fraud and electoral participation fraud In the interests of protecting freedom of speech false or misleading claims disinformation involving political viewpoint content should be tolerated not only by the criminal law but also by the internet platforms which host political content By contrast in the interests of preserving the integrity of democratic electoral processes disinformation involving electoral participation information should be prohibited by the criminal law and censored by internet platforms This book explains how the criminal law in various jurisdictions frequently prohibits false or misleading political claims falling into both categories of disinformation instead of concentrating on electoral participation fraud By contrast the right response to political viewpoint disinformation is the provision of more information that challenges people to question their beliefs and prejudices
