State Programs for English Language Learners National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Testing and Assessment, Committee on National Statistics, Panel to Review Alternative Data Sources for the Limited-English Proficiency Allocation Formula Under Title III, Part A, Elementary and Secondary Education Act, 2011-06-20 As the United States continues to be a nation of immigrants and their children the nation's school systems face increased enrollments of students whose primary language is not English With the 2001 reauthorization of the

Elementary and Secondary Education Act ESEA in the No Child Left Behind Act NCLB the allocation of federal funds for programs to assist these students to be proficient in English became formula based 80 percent on the basis of the population of children with limited English proficiency and 20 percent on the basis of the population of recently immigrated children and youth Title III of NCLB directs the U.S. Department of Education to allocate funds on the basis of the more accurate of two allowable data sources the number of students reported to the federal government by each state education agency or data from the American Community Survey ACS The department determined that the ACS estimates are more accurate and since 2005 those data have been basis for the federal distribution of Title III funds Subsequently analyses of the two data sources have raised concerns about that decision especially because the two allowable data sources would allocate quite different amounts to the states In addition while shortcomings were noted in the data provided by the states the ACS estimates were shown to fluctuate between years causing concern among the states about the unpredictability and unevenness of program funding In this context the U.S. Department of Education commissioned the National Research Council to address the accuracy of the estimates from the two data sources and the factors that influence the estimates The resulting book also considers means of increasing the accuracy of the data sources or alternative data sources that could be used for allocation purposes

Leslie Cameron,Douglas A. Bernstein,2022-08-29 This compendium of examples of psychological concepts and phenomena is designed to make it easier for both novice and experienced teachers of psychology at all levels to bring new and or particularly illuminating examples to their lectures and other presentations Psychology instructors know that vivid examples bring concepts to life for students making psychology both more accessible and interesting Having a good supply of such examples can be particularly important when as often happens students fail to immediately grasp particular points especially those that are complex or difficult Generating compelling examples can be challenging particularly when teaching a course such as Introductory Psychology in which much of the material is outside one's main area of expertise when teaching a course for the first time or when teaching a course that is entirely outside one's main area of expertise This compendium will serve as a one stop reference that presents a topic organized body of compelling examples that instructors can explore as they prepare their teaching materials The examples they will find range from simple illustrations e.g. muting an obnoxious commercial as an example of negative reinforcement to videos e.g. of a patient with prosopagnosia to brief stories e.g. about how confirmation bias led a man to dismantle a kitchen because he assumed that an electrical stove's whining clock was a trapped kitten to short summaries of research that illustrate a concept or phenomenon Beyond their value for enhancing the quality and interest level of classroom lectures the examples in this book can help teachers find ideas for engaging multiple choice exam and quiz items They can also serve as stimuli for writing assignments and small group discussions in which students are asked to come up with additional examples of the concept or phenomenon or link them to other concepts or phenomena
