Read, Succeed ,1990 Learning to Read the World and the Word R. Martin Reardon,Jack Leonard,2021-05-01

The perspective espoused by this volume is that collaboration among universities schools and communities is a crucial element in ensuring the provision of optimal learning environment for both im migrant children and their parents Chapter authors share their practice and theorizing regarding the many questions that arise when schools and universities collaborate with communities and build supportive structures to nurture literacy among im migrant students Enlightened teaching and culturally aware approaches from teachers engender support and cooperation from parents. Enlightened leadership is a constant thread through all the endeavors that are chronicled by contributors as are the implications for socially just outcomes of successful implementation of inclusive pedagogies. Writing about the Children Crossing Borders study which began in 2003, Tobin (2019) asserted that the social and political upheavals surrounding migration have put increasing pressure on the ECEC (early childhood education and care) sector to build bridges between the host and newly arrived communities. p. 2 Tobin recalled that the original grant proposal for the Children Crossing Borders described young migrant children as the true transnationals shuttling back and forth daily between the cultures of their home and the ECEC programs. p. 1 programs staffed by well intentioned individuals who nevertheless may lack awareness of immigrant parents' preferences for what will happen in their children's ECEC program. p. 2 To extrapolate from Tobin's summary of the findings of Children Crossing Borders for both the true transnationals, the children and their parents, the first and most profound engagement they have with the culture and language of their new host country p. 1 may well be mediated by a teacher who is unaware of the intricacies of the community.
