Sustainable Development for Central and Eastern Europe Ulrich Graute, 2012-12-06 Central and Eastern European Countries are undergoing a difficult transition process with consequences for spatial development Europe needs a more balanced polycentric system of cities a new urban rural relationship parity of access to infrastructure and knowledge as well as prudent management and development of the natural and cultural heritage Dealing with these complex challenges and the need for sustainable development politicians requires qualified advice from experts To this end the German Ministry for Regional Planning Construction and Urban Development initiated the Network of Spatial Research Institutes in Central and Eastern Europe CEE Net in 1992 Exchange of knowledge and an open dialogue at all levels are pre conditions for the cooperative development of visions and strategies serving spatial development in Europe The annual conferences of the network have been a first steps towards closer cooperation The high interest shown in these conferences by academics and government representatives and the fact that several research projects have already crystallised out of the debates they engendered indicate that the network is meeting a need for exchange and cooperation Decisions on spatial development do not stop at national borders and the discussion on spatial development in any European region has therefore to take the European context into consideration A special advantage of this publication is that as well as focusing on spatial development and research in CEE regions it also discusses Central and Eastern Europe in a European context Environmental Science in the Coastal Zone National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Commission on Geosciences, Environment and Resources, Commission on Geosciences, Environment, and Resources, 1994-02-01 This book assesses the dimensions of our scientific knowledge as it applies to environmental problems in the coastal zone The volume contains 10 papers that cover different aspects of science management and public policy concerning the coastal zone A consensus is presented on several key issues confronting science for developing a more holistic approach in managing this region's intense human activities and important natural resources U.S. Policy Toward the United Nations Conference on Environment and Development United States. Congress. House. Committee on Foreign Affairs, 1992 Environmental Impacts of Aquaculture Kenneth D. Black, 2001 The continued expansion of aquaculture in a wide range of environments and of a growing number of species has lead to increasing demands on aquatic resources These demands vary with the culture species the culture method and the environmental and ecological setting While there are many examples of efforts to mitigate detrimental environmental effects the environment remains the ultimate constraint on the future sustainable development of this maturing industry The relationships between the activities of aquaculture and the environment are therefore of economic importance as well as of scientific interest and for these reasons a large international research community has developed over the past decade In this volume the resultant research is synthesised and critically reviewed providing a source of reference to the most important recent developments at research and professional level The authors are internationally recognised authorities who have made significant contributions to their respective research areas The first part of the volume is organised in terms of the major culture types This is followed by chapters of general relevance to aquaculture The volume is designed to complement Biology of Farmed Fish eds K D Black A D Pickering also published in this series It is directed at fish biologists shellfish biologists and environmental scientists working in the academic governmental and industrial sectors

The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India Philippe Cullet,Lovleen Bhullar,Sujith Koonan,2024-07-12 Environmental law is a broad discipline covering issues such as nature conservation the prevention or abatement of pollution and waste management It also encompasses concerns related to natural resources such as forests minerals and fisheries and the balance between their use and conservation India has been at the forefront of jurisprudential developments among countries with similar environmental geographical socio economic and cultural conditions Concurrently the country has been receptive to ideas and principles arising from other parts of the world or from international law The growth of environmental and natural resources law in India has been sustained in equal measure by growing environmental awareness and the increasingly dire nature of the problems associated with the environment and natural resources ranging from local issues to the global climate crisis At the same time the continuous push for development has not abated leading to recurrent pressure to weaken existing standards for environmental protection and the management and use of natural resources The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India offers the most comprehensive coverage of the diverse and complex discipline of environmental and natural resources law in India over the past fifty years With forty two contributions from law and non law scholars the Handbook presents diverse perspectives on several areas including biodiversity climate change water forests agriculture health resource extraction and industrial development By departing from the existing approach that examines natural resources law and environmental law separately The Oxford Handbook of Environmental and Natural Resources Law in India offers a much needed integrated analysis of the development of domestic jurisprudence vis vis the environment and natural resources

Perspectives on Integrated Coastal Zone Management Wim Salomons,Kerry Turner,Luiz D. de Lacerda,S. Ramachandran,2012-12-06 All coastal areas are facing a growing range of stresses and shocks the scale of which now poses threats to the resilience of both human and environmental coastal systems Responsible agencies are seeking better ways of managing the causes and consequences of the environmental change process in coastal zones This volume discusses the basic principles underpinning a more integrated approach to coastal management and highlights the obstacles that may be met in practice in both developed and developing countries Successful strategies will have to encompass all the elements of management from planning and design through financing and implementation as highlighted in this book General Technical Report NE ,1980 Asia-Pacific

Conference on Science and Management of Coastal Environment Yuk-Shan Wong,Nora Fung-Yee Tam,2012-12-06

Human beings have a long historical relationship with the coast Initially it provided food and security later forming important locations for industrial and commercial development Now the emphasis has shifted towards leisure and conservation although the former functions remain crucial However it is only very recently that people have started viewing the coast as a common and valuable resource that requires rational utilisation and scientific management in order to sustain its attractiveness Of course enlightened management comes only through understanding of the complicated coastal regions which enables coastal managers to balance pressures from different sectors and to minimize risks Scientific knowledge will continue to be the most important basis for resolving the conflicts between coastal users and interest groups such as developers and ecologists Coastal management has also shifted from traditional restorative or remedial actions towards planned avoidance of other conflicts Despite rapid advancement in coastal sciences over recent decades most of the major coastal issues have remained outstanding in the agenda Control of shoreline erosion and protecting sea level rise continue to be crucial problems facing coastal scientists Destructive coastal storms still cause tremendous damage particularly in low altitudes Wetland and estuary reclamation have led to the loss of the most valuable estuary wetlands which are required to sustain biological productivity and biodiversity This volume includes papers on marine and coastal pollution eutrophication aquaculture conservation and utilization coastal wetlands and coastal zone management
