Studies, Water Science and Technology Board, Board on Environmental Studies and Toxicology, Committee on Hydrology, Ecology, and Fishes of the Klamath River, 2008-04-11 The Klamath River basin which spans parts of southern Oregon and northern California has been the focus of a prominent conflict over competing uses for water Management actions to protect threatened and endangered fish species in the basin have left less water available for irrigation in dry years and heightened tensions among farmers and other stakeholders including commercial fishermen Native Americans conservationists hunters anglers and hydropower producers This National Research Council book assesses two recent studies that evaluate various aspects of flows in the Klamath basin 1 the Instream Flow Phase II study IFS conducted by Utah State University and 2 the Natural Flow of the Upper Klamath Basin study NFS conducted by the U S Bureau of Reclamation USBR The book concludes that both studies offer important new information but do not provide enough information for detailed management of flows in the Klamath River and it offers many suggestions for improving the studies The report recommends that a comprehensive analysis of the many individual studies of the Klamath river basin be conducted so that a big picture perspective of the entire basin and research and management needs can emerge Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House Committee on

A Sociology of Special and Inclusive Education brings sociological perspectives to bear on the social political and economic policies and practices that comprise special and inclusive education and the education of lower attainers Increasingly governments have accepted the premise that education should incorporate all social and ethnic groups especially those regarded as having special educational needs disabilities and difficulties in learning but despite a plethora of literature on special and inclusive education world wide governments are still unsure of the reasons for this sector s expansion in their national education systems Professor Tomlinson applies critical sociological perspectives to the social processes policies and practices that comprise special and inclusive education particularly in England and the USA She clearly examines the way in which people or groups exercise power and influence to shape this area of education and discusses the conflicts of interest that arise in resulting social interactions and relationships Key questions asked include Why and how has a whole sector of education dealing with young people regarded as having learning difficulties low attainments behaviour problems or disabilities developed How have special education programmes and resources become subsumed into variations of inclusive education Why have ideological beliefs in hierarchies of ability limits to learning potential and IQ as measurement continued to legitimate the treatment of young people What happens to young people after their special included or lower attainers programmes in terms of work and life chances A Sociology of Special and Inclusive Education will be of interest to a wide range of educators professionals practitioners and policy makers concerned with special inclusive and vocational education in addition to undergraduate post graduate and research students and academics Hearings, Reports and Prints of the House Committee on Appropriations United States.
