ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

Endocrinology the scientific study of hormones and the endocrine glands.

- Functions
- 1. Growth and development
 - 2. Metabolic rate, energy and nutrient balance
 - 3. Regulation of the immune system and energy balance
 - 4. Reproduction

How it works
The endocrine system works with the nervous system to control and regulate cellular activities in the body and maintain homeostasis.

- Endocrine glands release hormones into the bloodstream to regulate cellular activities throughout the body.
- Each hormone has a specific function in the body and has a specific target cell to which it binds to exert its effect on the cell.
- Each hormone specifically binds to a target cell.
- A target cell has receptors on its cell membrane designed to respond to that specific hormone.
- When the hormone binds to its receptor, the receptor sends a signal to the cell's nucleus, which then sends a signal to the cell's cytoplasm, resulting in a hormonal response.

Effectors are cells, organs or glands that respond to hormones, producing a response.

ENDOCRINE VS. EXOCRINE GLANDS

Endocrine Glands	Exocrine Glands
Release hormones directly into the bloodstream.	Release substances through ducts into the body cavity or outside the body.
Examples: Hypothalamus, Pituitary, Thyroid, Parathyroid, Adrenal, Pancreas, Gonads.	Examples: Salivary Glands, Sweat Glands, Mammary Glands, Liver, Pancreas (acinar cells).
