A New U Ryan Craig, 2018-09-11 Every year the cost of a four year degree goes up and the value goes down But for many students there s a better answer So many things are getting faster and cheaper Movies stream into your living room without ticket or concession stand costs The world s libraries are at your fingertips instantly and for free So why is a college education the only thing that seems immune to change Colleges and universities operate much as they did 40 years ago with one major exception tuition expenses have risen dramatically What s more earning a degree takes longer than ever before with the average time to graduate now over five years As a result graduates often struggle with enormous debt burdens Even worse they often find that degrees did not prepare them to obtain and succeed at good jobs in growing sectors of the economy While many learners today would thrive with an efficient and affordable postsecondary education the slow and pricey road to a bachelor s degree is starkly the opposite In A New U Faster Cheaper Alternatives to College Ryan Craig documents the early days of a revolution that will transform or make obsolete many colleges and universities Alternative routes to great first jobs that do not involve a bachelor's degree are sprouting up all over the place. Bootcamps, income share programs, apprenticeships, and staffing models are attractive alternatives to great jobs in numerous growing sectors of the economy: coding, healthcare, sales, digital marketing, finance, and accounting, insurance, and data analytics. A New U is the first roadmap to these groundbreaking programs which will lead to more student choice, better matches with employers, higher return on investment of cost and time, and stronger economic growth.

Business Statistics, 1971 United States Investor, 1903 Survey of Current Business, 1971 United States Investor, 1912-07 International Anti-Corruption Norms Cecily Rose, 2015-08-13. This book traces the creation of international anti-corruption norms by states and other actors through four markedly different institutions: the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development, the United Nations, the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative, and the Financial Action Task Force. Each of these institutions oversees an international instrument that requires states to combat corruption. Yet only the United Nations oversees anti-corruption norms that take the sole form of a binding multilateral treaty. The OECD has, by contrast, fostered the development of the binding 1997 OECD Anti-Bribery Convention as well as non-binding recommendations and guidance associated with treaty itself. In addition, the revenue transparency and anti-money laundering norms developed through the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative and the Financial Action Task Force respectively take the form of non-binding instruments that have no relationship with multilateral treaties. The creation of international anti-corruption norms through non-binding instruments and informal institutions has the potential to privilege the interests of powerful states in ways that raise questions about the normative legitimacy of these institutions and the instruments they produce. At the same time, the anti-corruption instruments created under the auspices of these institutions also show that non-binding instruments and informal institutions carry significant advantages. The non-binding instruments in the anti-corruption field have demonstrated a capacity to influence domestic legal systems that is comparable to, if not greater than, that of binding treaties. With corruption and money laundering at the forefront of political debate, International Anti-Corruption Norms provides timely expertise on how states and international institutions grapple with these global problems.
