

Name _____

Active ReadingDeclines from Population Change in Asia

Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Over time, the population of populations change because of the way that individuals contribute to the next generation. Some people produce more than one child, while others produce fewer children. Some people live longer, while others live shorter. The average number of children that a person has is called the replacement rate. If the replacement rate is greater than one, the population will grow. If the replacement rate is less than one, the population will shrink. If the replacement rate is exactly one, the population will stay the same.

Demographic Data Table

The following table is the average number of children that a woman has. The table shows the average number of children that a woman has in different countries. The table also shows the average number of children that a woman has in different years.

Using the data provided, write the number of the row in which the data matches the description.
