One of the primary uses of the Internet for many consumers is shopping online. More and more companies are selling products, providing customer support, and doing market research via Web sites.

Side heading

Market Research

Marketing research firms make data available in a variety of forms for business needs. They focus on the customer and the market. Marketing research firms use questionnaires and interviews to gather information about consumer behaviors and attitudes. They also look at marketing trends and collect valuable demographic data. The U. S. Census Bureau (2005) describes the demographic data it provides:

Long quotation

The Population Estimates Program publishes total resident population estimates and demographic components of change (births, deaths, and migration) each year. We also publish the estimates by demographic characteristics (age, sex, race, and Hispanic origin) for the nation, states and counties.

Computer technology makes it possible for researchers to collect a variety of data, analyze huge amounts of information, and forecast market conditions. For example, customers
