Chapter 2: Environmental Science

Section 2.1: Environmental Science

Directions: Use the information from pages 44-49 to complete the following.

1. The scientific method is a series of steps used to investigate a problem and the scientific method is a systematic approach to investigation.
2. The first step in the scientific method is to ask a question that leads to a hypothesis.
3. The hypothesis is a statement that can be tested by experimentation or observation.
4. The next step is to design an experiment to test the hypothesis. This involves identifying the variables that will be tested.
5. The experimental group is the group that receives the treatment being tested. The control group is the group that does not receive the treatment.
6. The results of the experiment are then analyzed to see if they support the hypothesis. This is done by comparing the experimental group to the control group.
7. If the results support the hypothesis, the hypothesis is accepted. If the results do not support the hypothesis, the hypothesis is rejected.
8. The scientific method is a systematic approach to investigation that involves asking a question, designing an experiment, conducting an experiment, and analyzing the results.
