The Work of the Independent Police Complaints Commission Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Home Affairs Committee,2010 Despite an ever increasing workload the IPCC does little to prevent complaints against police behaviour in the first instance by improving forces complaints procedures and despite a budget of 35 million per annum the organisation lacks clear measures of success Despite the IPCC possessing staff of around 400 people the vast majority of complaints against police behaviour are investigated by the force concerned Of the 30 000 plus complaints against police behaviour last year less than 250 were directly managed by the IPCC which represents less than 10 per cent of serious complaints In 99 cases out of 100 and despite the existence of an independent statutory body complaints made against police behaviour will be investigated by the police The Committee also raised concerns at the use of ex police officers within the IPCC these officers can often end up investigating possible ex colleagues in their former force

The Home Affairs Committee is convinced that the police should be placing a much greater onus on resolving complaints in an open transparent and satisfactory manner themselves and calls upon the IPCC to produce a detailed plan of how the Commission working with bodies such as HMIC and NPIA will improve police performance in this area
