Enzymes and Cellular Regulation

(Illustrate the factors that regulate the activity of the enzyme catalase (catalase))

Effect

Enzymes are protein-based biological molecules that catalyze chemical reactions. They are highly specific, meaning they only catalyze one type of reaction. Enzymes are also sensitive to their environment, meaning they only work under certain conditions. Enzymes are regulated by various factors, including temperature, pH, and the presence of inhibitors and activators. The regulation of enzyme activity is crucial for the proper functioning of the cell, as it ensures that the right enzymes are active at the right time and in the right place.
