definition of the research object This puts cognitive science in an awkward position of looking for a black cat in a dark room without knowing what a cat is The mission is impossible even if the cat is there Some researchers believe that it is impossible to define the Mind Some think that the problem is too hard for the Mind to define itself Some are satisfied with the tautology that the Mind is a set of mental phenomena Some say that we should not risk giving a specific definition because we do not have enough knowledge and prefer to wait for someone else to do it sometime in the future There are so many cooks but they have not even started to get the broth done as they seem to be afraid to spoil it They discuss various kinds of recipes and methods So far the consensus is that the Mind should be studied on various levels of analysis which are usually called computational algorithmic representational and implementational To put it simply we should understand what the Mind does why it does and how it does These are questions for the scientific study of any phenomenon They are usually called functional teleological and causal questions However before we can get to those levels we have to build a foundation by answering the phenomenological question of what we study Without it all other levels of analysis hang in the air and the Mind remains a mystery For a scientific solution to the mystery the definition of the Mind as a basic hypothesis about the object of study must be formulated in physical terms and thus testable and potentially refutable or confirmable In this volume of the Symphony of Matter and Mind project the author takes the physical and biophysical foundation laid down in the previous volumes concerning the questions about Matter and proceeds to answer the questions about the Mind from a physical perspective Taking the risk the proposed theory starts by giving a precise physical definition of the research object and based on this foundation develops computational algorithmic representational and implementational levels in this and the following volumes The road is long but it cannot be covered without a first step
