

Drawing Lewis Structures

A Lewis Structure is a simplified model to represent just the valence (outer) electrons of an atom. It is useful since only the valence electrons are used for bonding molecules.

- 1) Write the symbol for your element.
- 2) Determine the # of valence electrons (group #)
- 3) Start on the right and draw the electrons counter clockwise around the element's symbol.

Li·	Be·	·B·	·C·	·N·	·O·	·F·	·Ne·
Group 1	Group 2	Group 3	Group 4	Group 5	Group 6	Group 7	Group 8

* Remember, Lewis Structures only show the valence electrons, not all of the electrons in an atom.
