Sibbald,Julian F. Bion,2002-01-21 Measuring the quality of a complex service like critical care that combines the highest technology with the most intimate caring is a challenge Recently consumers clinicians and payers have requested more formal assessments and comparisons of the quality and costs of medical care 2 Donabedian 1 proposed a framework for thinking about the quality of medical care that separates quality into three components structure process and outcome An instructive analogy for understanding this framework is to imagine a food critic evaluating the quality of a restaurant The critic might comment on the decoration and lighting of the restaurant how close the tables are to each other the extent of the wine list and where the chef trained These are all evaluations of the restaurant structure In addition the critic might comment on whether the service was courteous and timely measures of process Finally the critic might comment on outcomes like customer satisfaction or food poisoning Similarly to a health care critic structure is the physical and human resources used to deliver medical care Processes are the actual treatments offered to patients Finally outcomes are what happens to patients for example mortality quality of life and satisfaction with care Table 1 There is a debate about which of these measurements is the most important measure of quality

Families in the Intensive Care Unit

Ashlee J. Vance, Deena Kelly Costa, Giora Netzer, 2025-05-09 This first edition of this text was the first book to comprehensively survey the challenges in understanding and working with families whose loved ones are critically ill The comprehensive nature of that book served as a state of the art reference in this sphere for a broad spectrum of researchers and clinicians All chapters were authored by established experts in the respective fields providing an overview that has been used both in theory and practice Since the first edition's publication the public recognition of the importance of families has increased dramatically as a consequence of the COVID 19 pandemic Most major decisions in the intensive care unit ICU are shared by clinicians and someone other than the patient Improving communication between clinicians and these surrogate decision makers has proven hard in multiple clinical trials Families suffer too when their loved ones are critically ill Anxiety stress and depression are common and post traumatic stress disorder may occur while their loved ones are still in the ICU Families struggle to understand prognoses and conflicts with the care team occur frequently These conflicts not only injure families but also contribute to health care provider burnout Now in its fully revised and expanded second edition Families in the Intensive Care Unit reflects lessons learned during the COVID pandemic response as well as knowledge gained about family support when families cannot be at the bedside The chapter subjects again reflect a combination of breadth and depth Physical and psychological morbidity are explored as barriers to effective decision making as are cognitive challenges The full array of the interdisciplinary and interprofessional team is represented emphasizing the multimodal approach This edition includes administrative considerations for health care management and approaches for training members of the health care team Similarly family voices are also represented The complete trajectory of needs of care are addressed including survivorship and end of life care
