

ENDOCRINE SYSTEM

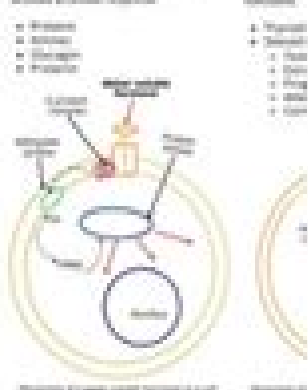

Hormones Chemical substances that act as messengers and control metabolic functions of other cells in the body.

- They are 7-10% of the body's mass.
- Are classified as steroid or protein hormones.
- Protein hormones, acting through receptors on the cell membrane, produce a response in the cell.
- Steroid hormones, acting through receptors in the cell, produce a response in the cell.
- Protein hormones, acting through receptors on the cell membrane, produce a response in the cell.
- Steroid hormones, acting through receptors in the cell, produce a response in the cell.

Water vs. Lipid Soluble Hormones

Water soluble hormones bind to a receptor on the plasma membrane, producing a response. It produces a regulatory molecule that is released in the blood and will act in a cell to produce a metabolic response.

Lipid soluble hormones bind to a receptor in the cytoplasm, producing a response. It produces a regulatory molecule that is released in the blood and will act in a cell to produce a metabolic response.

Endocrinology the scientific study of hormones and the endocrine glands.

- 1. Growth and development
- 2. Metabolic rate, anabolic and catabolic processes
- 3. Regulation of the immune system and energy balance
- 4. Reproduction

How it works: The endocrine system works with the nervous system to control and regulate cellular activities in the body and maintain homeostasis.

- 1. Hormones are released by endocrine glands into the bloodstream.
- 2. Each hormone has a specific function in the body and acts on target cells to produce a response.
- 3. Each hormone has a specific receptor on its target cell.
- 4. When the hormone binds to its receptor, it triggers a signal transduction pathway that leads to a cellular response.
- 5. After the hormone binds to its receptor, it triggers a signal transduction pathway that leads to a cellular response.

Effectors are cells, organs or glands that respond to a hormone, producing a response.

ENDOCRINE VS. EXOCRINE GLANDS

Endocrine glands secrete hormones directly into the bloodstream. Examples include the hypothalamus, pituitary, thyroid, parathyroid, adrenal, pancreas, and gonads.

Exocrine glands secrete substances through ducts. Examples include the salivary glands, sweat glands, and the digestive system.

REPRODUCTIVE SYSTEM

Reproductive system is a series of organs that work together to produce offspring and maintain the environment, undergo changes in response to hormonal levels in the blood.
