Knowledge under Construction Daniel Ness,Stephen J. Farenga,2007-03-26 Knowledge under Construction investigates how young children develop spatial geometric and scientific thinking skills particularly those associated with architecture Based on original research and analysis of videotapes of children's play with blocks the authors findings suggest that such play is anything but pointless Their conclusions fill in gaps in our current understanding of how children learn to think spatially and scientifically even while challenging portions of that understanding including some of Piaget's thesis about the primacy of topological space in children's learning A system of measurement developed to identify and categorize children's spontaneous behavior at play allows adults to observe patterns of behavior as children play and record the development of process skills and cognitive abilities enhancing our understanding of how children begin to learn about space and architectural relationships The book also examines the educational implications of our enhanced understanding One possible development is a new alternative way to measure cognitive abilities and development in children based on their work with blocks International Handbook of Early Childhood Education Marilyn Fleer,Bert van Oers,2017-10-10 This international handbook gives a comprehensive overview of findings from longstanding and contemporary research theory and practices in early childhood education in the Northern and Southern hemispheres The first volume of the handbook addresses theory methodology and the research activities and research needs of particular regions The second volume examines in detail innovations and longstanding programs curriculum and assessment and conceptions and research into child family and communities The two volumes of this handbook address the current theory methodologies and research needs of specific countries and provide insight into existing global similarities in early childhood practices By paying special attention to what is happening in the larger world contexts the volumes provide a representative overview of early childhood education practices and research and redress the current North South imbalance of published work on the subject The Publishers' Trade List Annual ,1991 The All-Day Kindergarten and Pre-K Curriculum Doris Pronin
