innovative account of how Mandarin Chinese as a language without extensive morphological marking highlights or foregrounds major events of a narrative and demotes or backgrounds other supporting descriptions Qualitative and quantitative methods in the analysis and examinations of authentic written text provide extensive evidence to demonstrate that various types of morpho syntactic devices are used in a wide range of structural units in Chinese to mark the distinction between foregrounding and backgrounding The analysis paves the way for future studies to systematically approach grounding related issues The typological viewpoint adopted in the chapters serves well readers from both the Chinese tradition and other languages in discourse analysis Who Climbs the Grammar-tree Rosemarie Tracy,1992 Over the past few decades the book series Linguistische Arbeiten Linguistic Studies comprising over 500 volumes has made a significant contribution to the development of linguistic theory both in Germany and internationally The series will continue to deliver new impulses for research and maintain the central insight of linguistics that progress can only be made in acquiring new knowledge about human languages both synchronically and diachronically by closely combining empirical and theoretical analyses To this end we invite submission of high quality linguistic studies from all the central areas of general linguistics and the linguistics of individual languages which address topical questions discuss new data and advance the development of linguistic theory Research in Education ,1970 Grammatical Relations in Chinese Randy J.
