The Practice of Teachers Professional Development Helen Grimmer, 2014-07-11

This book uses Vygotsky's cultural historical theory to provide a unique theorisation of teachers professional development as a practice A practice can be described as the socially structured actions set up to produce a product or service aimed at meeting a collective human need In this case collaborative interventionist work with teachers in two different Australian primary schools sought to simultaneously identify understand and develop the necessary conditions for supporting the teachers development as professionals The in depth analysis of this practice provides interesting insight into professional development for teachers at all levels of schooling and provides strong support for educational researchers administrators and consultants to reconsider many existing forms of professional learning development programs This book supports the contemporary view that professional learning must take place with teachers rather than be delivered to teachers but provides an important expansion to current work in this area by arguing that a focus on teachers learning of new strategies and principles may still fall short of creating long term change in teachers professional practice By taking a cultural historical approach the focus moves to supporting teachers development of unified concepts the intertwining of theoretical and practical aspects and motives to continue their ongoing development as professionals This emphasis builds teachers capacity to examine and disrupt habitual practices and understand create and implement thoughtful and sustainable transformations in all areas of their professional life This book therefore builds upon the ongoing conversation about professional learning and development offering a new framework for researching understanding and developing this critical practice

Extending Literacy Maureen Lewis, David Wray, 2005-06-21 One of the most problematic areas in the teaching and development of literacy appears to concern children's interactions with non-fiction books. Many surveys and reports have commented on the tendency for children to do little more than copy out sections of non-fiction texts. The Exeter Extending Literacy EXEL project was set up with the aim of exploring ways in which non-fiction might be used more effectively and profitably than this. In this book David Wray and Maureen Lewis outline the thinking behind the project and describe in detail the many useful teaching strategies and approaches which were developed in collaboration with primary teachers across the country. Teachers of children from five to fourteen will find this book both a stimulating account of a very influential development project and a useful source of practical teaching ideas.
